Still no cure for the common cold

FDA panel finds no sure thing in nonprescription remedies

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Sniffle. Sneeze. Cough.

Americans spend an estimated $700 million a year on nonprescription or over-the-counter cold remedies.

In an effort to discover which medicines — if any — really work, the Food and Drug Administration set up a panel of nongovernment experts who studied the labels of cold, cough, allergy, bronchodilator and anti-asthmatic drug products.

Their findings echoed what many people had been saying for years: none of the nonprescription products will prevent, cure or even shorten the course of the common cold.

The panel did find that some of the products eased the symptoms of a cold. It expressed concern, however, that there are so few single-ingredient products on the market. Combination drugs are often not necessary, the panel said, because different symptoms strike at different times, and may not be good for some people because of individual reactions to various ingredients.

Similar concern over combination products has come from other sources. Joe Graedon, a pharmacologist and author of "The People's Pharmacy," a guide to various prescription and nonprescription drugs, says: "There is almost no medical justification for products which contain so many different compounds all rolled up into one and there is reason to believe that there could be a negative effect."

Graedon also claims that antihistamines commonly found in cold products should not be included. Antihistamines, he says, increase and thicken the mucus already in your lungs.

The FDA panel, noting that antihistamines are valuable for providing relief from hay fever symptoms, said there is "little valid evidence" that they are effective in treating the common cold. It suggested additional testing and recommended that antihistamine labels be required to state clearly that the products are designed only for temporary relief of runny nose, sneezing, itching of the nose or throat and itchy and watery eyes, but not for nasal symptoms such as stuffy noses.

The FDA is still considering the panel's recommendations and is studying comment received from the public and industry. A proposal based on the recommendations is expected later in the year.

The study group reviewed some 90 ingredients and placed each item in one of three categories:

—Generally recognized as safe and effective and not mislabeled.

—Not generally recognized as safe and effective or mislabeled. (The government could order these products removed from the marketplace after the final FDA proposal is issued.)

—Available data insufficient to permit final classification. (The panel recommended that items in this category be allowed to stay on the market for a given length of time providing tests are conducted to answer the questions raised in the study.)

Consumers who want to know which ingredients fall in each category can send for a free fact sheet, The Common Cold. Write to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 642E, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

Foreign trade plummets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's trade balance fell into its deepest monthly deficit ever in January as the severe winter weather slowed movement of domestic goods and closed many plants, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said imports of goods outpaced exports by $1.67 billion in January, up from $610 million in December and the biggest deficit since November's $1.03 billion deficit. Imports exceeded exports by $5.87 billion for all of last year.

Exports plunged 7.8 per cent in January, a sharp reversal of the 8.6 per cent increase in December. Imports, meanwhile, grew by 2.3 per cent in January compared to a 3.7 advance in December.

The trade figures are the latest in a lengthening string of government statistics delineating the impact of the harsh winter weather on the economy. An estimated 1.25 million or more people were out of work at the peak of the weather problems due to frigid temperatures, heavy snow and energy shortages. Industrial production fell last month, retail sales were off and other indicators of industrial and economic activity dipped.

Administration economists have said they expect total economic growth for the current three-month period to be cut by 2 per cent at an annual rate, although the economy is expected to make up that drop before the year is over.

The Commerce Department said the weather "had a pronounced impact in diminishing the volume of goods moving out of the country" but analysts were unable to provide a detailed estimate of how much of January's export drop was due to this factor.

The drop in exports was virtually across the board. The only categories showing increases were raw tobacco, soybeans, hides and skins, precious and semi-precious stones and trucks and cars to Canada. Food exports were off $143.8 million. Machinery and transporation equipment exports fell $614.6 million.

On the import side, petroleum was up 5 per cent to 268.2 million barrels. That was the most foreign oil brought in for any month since the 285.7 million in January, 1975.

Governors may get bigger roles in federal plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's top political aide assured the nation's governors today that they have "a friend in the White House" as they seek a bigger role in shaping the programs of the federal government.

"We've been on the receiving end," Hamilton Jordan said after conferring with Democratic governors. "The President has been a governor. He knows their problems."

Jordan said the President wants help from the governors too. He said they can provide a significant boost to administration efforts to reorganize the executive branch of the government and, in the process, reshape programs that shape the states.

"We intend to assert ourselves in constructive ways while participating in the formulation of national policy that affect our states and cities," said Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, chairman of the National Governors Conference.

"On energy policy, welfare and Medicaid reform and other areas of concern, our views must be considered for any national policies on these and other issues to have any validity in our home states," Askew said at the opening session of a two-day Washington conference that was expected to draw 48 of the 50 state governors.

Even California's skeptical Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who never bothered to come before, said the governors may have more clout with Carter in the White House.

"Given the fact that we have a former governor as President, this may make the National Governors' Conference a more effective vehicle for national public policy," Brown said.

"We want to develop a continuing partnership that will bring about the fullest possible participation of state government in the federal decision-making process," said Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, the conference chairman.

That's what Carter promised. Not in 32 years, since the death of Franklin D. Roosevlt, has a former governor held the White House, and Carter said he would not forget the lessons of his four years as governor of Georgia.

Ontarian's spinal column cut

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

A 23-year-old Ontario man is in critical condition in San Bernardino County Hospital with a severed spinal column after he was robbed, beaten and stabbed by five men in the 1800 block of South Euclid Avenue in Ontario early today.

Antonio Oropeza of Ontario suffered a stab wound of the neck that severed his spinal column and a stab wound of the upper left shoulder in the attack about 1 a.m., police said.

Investigators reported the victim and a friend were driving north on Euclid Avenue when a group of other men in another car, all described as Latins, asked them to pull over and give them some cigarettes. Oropeza stopped his car and exited. He was suddenly jumped by the men, one armed with a knife. Oropeza's friend, whom police did not identify, ran from the area with two of the assailants in pursuit.

Britons may also have to meet Amin Wednesday

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ugandan President Idi Amin is apparently summoning Britons as well as Americans to a meeting with him Wednesday at Entebbe airport, reports reaching Nairobi said today.

British diplomats in both Kampala, the Ugandan capital, and Nairobi said they were checking reports that members of the 200-strong British community were ordered to be there together with the 240 Americans.

Britain severed relations with Amin's regime in August 1976, but two British diplomats still handle British interests out of the French embassy in Kampala.

Amin earlier moved his projected meeting with the Americans from a conference hall to Entebbe airport, delayed it from today until Wednesday and warned the United States not to emulate its Israeli allies with an attempted commando rescue.

In Washington, President Carter said the U.S. government was watching the situation "closely, trying not to upset President Amin, and trying to take advantage of his good wishes that he has expressed."

Radio Uganda reported on Sunday that Amin postponed the meeting from 11 a.m. Monday until 8 a.m. Wednesday at the request of the Americans in his East African country, who are estimated by the State Department to number about 240. Most of them are missionaries.

Amin said no Americans would be allowed to leave the country and ordered the meeting Friday, two days after he claimed the United States, Britain and Israel were involved in a plot to overthrow him.

The official radio also warned Ugandans to be alert for signs of an invasion.

Highly-publicized child beating trial under way today

ATHENS, Tenn. (AP) — A special sound-equipped room was readied at McMinn County Courthouse today to hold the overflow crowd expected at the trial of Ronald and Wanda Gibson Maddux, charged with the beating death of Mrs. Maddux's 4-year-old daughter, Melisha.

The child's nude body was found on a bare mattress in the unheated living room of the Maddux's home in Cleveland, Tenn., last Oct 13 — just five months after the state returned Melisha to the couple.

The Madduxes had been convicted of abusing Melisha when she was 11 months old and were jailed for six months. The state Human Services Department returned the child to them last May.

Reporters and some 150 prospective jurors were expected to fill the 200-seat courtroom. A basement room with loudspeakers to relay the proceedings was prepared for the overflow.

Criminal Court Judge James Witt said attorneys and witnesses in the second-degree murder trial would use a side door of the courthouse to keep them away from reporters and the public.

"There will be stringent security at the courthouse," said Sheriff Larry Wallace. "And there will be extra tight security measures taken at the jail while the Madduxes are here."

Judge Witt moved the widely-publicized trial to Athens last year because he said heavy publicity made it impossible for the Madduxes to receive a fair trial in the Cleveland area.

Last week, he rejected a motion to suppress statements the Madduxes made to sheriff's deputies the day the body was found.

Mrs. Maddux was alleged to have said her husband resented Melisha because the child was fathered by another man. Maddux reportedly told deputies that he began disciplining Melisha after she wet her pants.

Youth killed by another teen in parking lot

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

A 14-year-old boy fatally wounded a 16-year-old youth on the parking lot of the Jack In The Box Drive Thru at 100 E. Holt Ave. in Pomona early Sunday in an apparent gang-related incident, police said.

The victim, Gerald Gonzales, of 1770 Norval St., died shortly before 4 a.m. while undergoing emergency surgery at Pomona Valley Community Hospital. He had a bullet wound in his stomach.

Less than 40 minutes after Gonzales was shot down while standing with his brother, police arrested two suspects. One was a 14-year-old Pomonan who, they said, admitted firing the single shot at the victim. The other, 19-year-old Linda Susan Cesena, who lives on W. Monterey Street in Pomona, is suspected of being the young woman who drove the car from which the shot was fired.

Miss Cesena remained in the Pomona City Jail this morning while the 14-year-old was confined in Juvenile Hall. Both were booked on suspicion of murder.

Sunday's shooting was the second such incident to occur on the Jack In The Box parking lot within the last two years. On June 29, 1975, Bobby Earl Walker, 32, was shot to death while desperately trying to crawl under a car to avoid a man with a gun.

Witnesses to Sunday's shooting told police that a young woman accompanied by a youth drove up to the service window shortly before 2 a.m. and placed an order. While waiting, an argument developed between the passenger and one of two youths outside.

The argument became so heated that the young woman demanded that her order be hurried, and when it was delivered to her, she began driving across the lot. Near the sidewalk, the car stopped within a few feet of the victim and his brother, John Lobo, and a shot was fired. Gonzales fell face-down, and the car sped away, westbound in Holt Avenue.

The two suspects were arrested in the 800 block of W. Commercial Street as the result of a description of the car used in the shooting, and of its occupants. A pistol, believed to have been the weapon used to shoot Gonzales, has been recovered.

Investigators later quoted the 14-year-old as saying that the argument was over gang rivalries, that he was afraid of the victim and that as he and the young woman were leaving, the victim made a move toward his pants pocket. They said the youth told them that he then took the pistol from a trench coat lying across the front seat and fired at Gonzales, thinking Gonzales may have been reaching for a weapon.

The youth told them that he didn't know at the time the car sped away if the shot had hit Gonzales, they added.

200-MILE FISHING LIMIT Shaded area shows offshore waters over which the U.S. will assume the right to limit fishing rights of all nations Tuesday. The zone extends generally 200 miles off the coast except where reciprocal agreements exist, such as between the U.S. and Canada and a foreign nation such as Cuba. The Coast Guard will patrol the new area.

Coast Guard patrol duty expands

Vast new coverage area set

By The Associated Press

With one reactivated cutter, eight C-130 Hercules airplanes and five HH-52 helicopters added to its force, the U.S. Coast Guard begins policing a vast new area of ocean at midnight tonight.

From that moment, foreign fishing boats will need permits to toss nets within 200 miles of the U.S. coast under a new law extending the nation's fishing jurisdiction. Previously, the United States restricted foreign fishing only within 12 miles of the coast.

Although the law has no effect on the traditional three-mile territorial limit, it will provide a test of a single government's right to police the open seas for economic reasons.

Vessels that are not fishing will be allowed to pass through the 200-mile corridor unhindered.

Despite the increased policing, a spokesman said the Coast Guard does not anticipate many problems.

"The fish will follow the traditional patterns," said Lt. Eric Williams in New York City. "The fishing boats will follow the fish. The Coast Guard will follow the fishing boats."

The Coast Guard is empowered to board foreign fishing vessels within the limit and inspect catches and equipment for violations. Penalties for violations can range from a warning to seizure of the vessel.

The Coast Guard said it would depend on its regular force to patrol the seas, plus the additional surface and air equipment. A spokesman said it will take delivery in 1979 of a fleet of medium-range Falcon jets for surveillance.

On the West Coast, Vice Adm. Austin Wagner, commander of the Coast Guard division that stretches from San Luis Obispo in central California to the Canadian border, said a spot check late last week showed about two dozen foreign vessels fishing within 200 miles of shore.

He said they were told to cease all fishing today and that they would have to wait to resume fishing until June 1, when hake and jack mackerel seasons start.

In the Northeast, foreign fishermen are prohibited from catching haddock, cod and yellow tail flounder.

Supporters of the law, which originated from a movement in New England four years ago, believe the expanded fishing limit will reactivate the dwindling American fishing industry. They also say it will protect species that they contend have been overfished by aggressive foreign fleets, some of which remain for six months fishing 24 hours a day close to the U.S. coast.

Opponents of the law, including the State and Defense departments, have feared retaliation against U.S. fishermen and navigation rights from governments affected by the extension.

State revokes licenses

Five real estate promoters cited

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The state has revoked the real estate licenses of five promoters of raw land in the arid Antelope Valley, around Barstow and Edwards Air Force Base.

The state commissioner of real estate, David H. Fox, said Sunday the company handling the sales "violated the department's regulations on the sale of land for investment potential."

Those losing their licenses were Dennis Ray Smith, 34, of Daly City, former president of Investors Research International (IRI), which sold more than 2,000 parcels for more than $20 million, and four sales persons: Robert W Moore, 52, of Sacramento; James O'Carrol, 30, of San Francisco; Vincent Pahl, 42, of Belvedere, and Regina Robinson, 35, of Lafayette.

Fox said IRI once had more than 250 persons on its sales force.

As an example of its tactics, Fox said IRI was selling a parcel for $50,000 which the county assessor had appraised at about $11,000.

He said that in order to induce into the mind of the purchaser the belief that the land had profit potential, "the licensees lured purchasers to enter into an agreement granting IRI a 10-year exlusive right to sell or exchange the parcels...at prices four times the then purchase price,"

He said they represented that land in the valley would yield a profit as high as 200 per cent in 10 to 15 years, that it would grow like Cape Kennedy, and it was the "last developable land in California."

Prospective purchasers of raw land were advised to personally inspect the property, make an independent determination of value, and resist buying under pressure or impulse.

Fox added that persons who obtain judgments based on fraud, misrepresentation or false promise and are unable to collect, may seek reimbursement from the state Department of Real Estate's Recovery Fund.

In new county budget

Tax rate to hold present services

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Chief Administrative Officer Harry L. Hufford expects to report to county supervisors Tuesday the current property tax rate of $4.46 per $100 assessed valuation will hold in the new budget without unduly disrupting county services or causing further layoffs.

More state and federal aid and a major increase in Los Angeles County's assessed valuation resulted this fiscal year in a $3.3 billion spending plan financed by a tax rate six cents less than the rate last year.

Hufford predicts a shrinkage of county government will continue in the new budget, reflecting the theme of the 1976-77 budget which was "viewed as the means for the county to modify its programs and services to reflect the funding limitations imposed by the federal and state governments."

Hufford anticipates a $17 million deficit in the new budget, based on the assumption there will be a 6 per cent increase in assessed valuation, which would bring in almost $100 million in additional revenue, offset by a projected increase in required spending programs amounting to $117 million.

He says the projected deficit could be made up by a general 2.4 per cent cut in spending.

Service stations few, but gasoline sales up

PASADENA (AP) — The number of service stations in California is declining while the remaining stations are pumping more gas, says a member of the State Board of Equalization.

Richard Nevins, in a statement issued for release today, said stations in Los Angeles County are closing at the rate of one every day and a half.

Statewide figures show 754 fewer stations in the state on Jan. 1 than on July 1, 1976.

With this latest decline, the number of stations in the state is at its lowest level in 20 years," said Nevins. There were 17,744 stations in operation on Jan. 1, versus 22,431 six years earlier.

"What makes these figures even more remarkable is tht the total amount of gasoline pumped in the state in 1957 (when 18,524 station were in operation) was less than 5 billion gallons," Nevins said. Whereas the year 1976 exceeded 10.7 billion gallons for an all-time high."

Nevins did not discuss the reason for the decline.

Two Emmy shows may be aired

BEVERLY HILLS (AP) — There may be two Emmy Awards programs for television programming this year the traditional one scheduled to be televised in May, and an upstart in August or September

Larry Stewart, president of the Hollywood Chapter of the National Academy of Arts and Sciences, was responding to the revocation of his group's charter Saturday when he said he will form a new academy.

Urging its members not to participate in the Emmy Awards program was the major reason given by the National Academy trustees for revoking the Hollywood chapter's charter at a meeting at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

The chapter's 5,000 members, who account for 43 per cent of the Academy's rolls, will remain members of the National Academy, the organization's trustees said.

The Hollywood chapter, the Academy's largest, was ousted on a 20-1 vote with two abstentions.

Leaders of the Hollywood chapter have urged their members for months to boycott all Academy activities and 800 have signed a petition refusing to participate in the Emmy Awards program to be televised in May.

'Muleteers' promoting parimutuels

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Last year it was a mule that won the coast-to-coast Great American Horse Race — and now a group of muleteers wants parimutuel betting on them, like horses.

It's a group at Bishop, population 3,700, on the east side of the Sierras near the Nevada border.

Bishop holds an annual Mule Day Celebration on the Memorial Day weekend.

Last year 40,000 spectators showed up, mostly to watch the mule parade in which 400 to 450 hee-haws move through town mostly frontwards, but partly backwards and some sideways.

Says Bishop mule promoter Robert Tanner: "Mule racing is pretty exciting in that it is a little unpredictable."

Mules are the offspring of male donkeys and female horses.

"People are starting to get organized, and starting to breed quarterhorses and thoroughbreds for running mules, and I think they will come up with a pretty fancy animal," says Tanner.

"From what I am told, a lot of people are starting to get serious. Mules now are beginning to bring the same prices as a good horse."

Tanner himself, a retired U.S. Forest Service packer, has a mule named Margaret that cost $6,000. She consistently wins races.

Assemblyman Larry Chimbole, D-Palmdale, was persuaded to introduce a bill last week permitting experimental parimutuel mule racing for five years, starting in 1978.

The chances of the bill passing the legislature are problematical because last November, the voters rejected a proposition to permit parimutuel betting on greyhounds.

But regardless of the outcome of his bill, Chimbole plans to be in Bishop next Mule Day — he has learned to drive two miniature mules.

State briefs

Pot ship sabotage nixed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Coast Guard officials have discounted the chance of sabotage in last December's explosion of the tanker sansinena, saying bomb experts failed to find evidence that an explosive device triggered the blast that killed nine men.

Lt. Cmdr. Rn.N. Roussel said Sunday that Coast Guard bomb experts had examined the hull of the wrecked Sansinena and didn't find evidence of an external explosion that might have set off the blast. The sabotage theory was born over the weekend when salvage workers found a mysterious hole in the hull, with the steel around the hole bent inward.

Pair jailed for vandalism

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two men have been arrested for allegedly taking their anger out on about 50 emergency callboxes along the Foothill, San Gabriel River, San Diego and Artesia freeways.

A California Highway Patrol spokesman said William D. Holtman Jr. of Torrance and Richard Felix of Gardena were booked Sunday night for investigation of damaging telephone equipment and for possession of marijuana.

State hit with complaints

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The State of California is being told by half its counties that they're being soaked hundreds of millions of dollars for programs the state said it would pay for but hasn't.

Some of the complaints are to be aired today and tomorrow at a hearing of the Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Alien status drive set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Carter has been urged to seek a law that would make permanent residents of all illegal aliens who have been in the country for at least three years.

The appeal was made Sunday by state Sen. Alex Garcia, DLos Angeles, who also urged formation of a bilateral trade commission to encourage more financial ties between the United States and Latin America.

Damage set in L.A. fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fire in a high school woodworking shop shop has caused more than $30,000 in damage, authoities say.

Fire officials said they were investigating arson in the btaze the broke out Sunday in the 50x200-foot structure at David Starr Jordan High School. No inuries were reported.

Wrongful death suit set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A $35,000 settlement of a $2.5 million wrongful death suit has been accepted by the family of 34-year-old man who was shot to death in 1974 by former Los Angeles police officer Paul D. Koerschgen.

James O. Baldwin was shot after Koerschgen and his partner, Officer Joseph M. Coppi, stopped Baldwin's car because it matched the description of one used in a gang fight.

Koerschgen told investigators Baldwin was shot when he tried to get a pistol from his car.

Police hunt for 5-year-old girl

LONG BEACH (AP)—Authorities conducted a house-to-house search through the night for a 5-year-old girl Sylvia Oliveros, reported missing by her parents.

Police L. Rod Mickelson said the girl was last seen around 6 p.m. Sunday and reported missing four hours later.

"There is no indication that she has been kidnapped," Mickelson said. "We're hoping that she ran away, as she did once before, to a friend's house," Mickelson said.

He said officers used a trained dog to help them search for the girl.

Maine tribes want $300 million

Carter representative to bargain with Indians

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will appoint a representative to negotiate legislation awarding damages to two Maine Indian tribes for thousands of acres of land taken from them nearly two centuries ago, the Justice Department disclosed today.

While the negotiations are in progress, the department will continue legal action on behalf of the tribal claims to interior lands in Maine. But with the agreement of tribal officials, the government will drop the claims affecting the more heavily populated coastal areas of the state from the lawsuit.

The government position was outlined in a memorandum filed in U.S. District Court in Portland, Maine.

With Justice Department representation, the Penobscot and Passamaquoddy tribes filed suit seeking $300 million in damages on grounds that 12.5 million acres of land was unjustly taken from them in the 18th century.

The Interior Department last month recommended that the government also seek return of the land to the Indians plus $300 million in back rent and damages. The court had given the Justice Department until March 1 to outline its views.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Peter R. Taft said he has concluded that a negotiated settlement would be a far better solution than lengthy proceedings through the courts. He said the tribes accept that view.

The department memo suggested no specific sum which Congress might award the tribes to settle the land claims.

But department attorneys wrote, "Only a congressional resolution of the Indian claims can correct the past injustices to the tribes without creating new hardships for others."

The department noted that a victory for the Indians in court would resolve "past injustices imposed on the tribes" but it also would cause hardships for "innocent parties who acted largely in good faith in purchasing real estate, investing their funds and improving their property."

Some 350,000 non-Indians now occupy the land originally claimed by the tribes.

CB friends saddened by girl's death

SMYRNA, Ga. (AP) — She was only 12, but her death lined the road with Citizens Band radio friends and brought out an honor guard of police and firemen and a salute from a naval air station's rifle squad.

Known by her CB handle, "Tippy Toes," Terri Myers in the past two months had become a friend to CB listeners in an area northwest of Atlanta.

She died Friday after fighting a muscle cancer that had afflicted her for the past year.

On Sunday, as the funeral motorcade passed, Terri's CB friends stood at attention in front of their vehicles, small strips of black cloth waving from antennas.

Terri's grandparents gave her a mobile CB unit last December.

Friends she made on the air waves formed the area's first CB club, the Tippy Toes club, which raised more than $7,000 to help with her medical expenses.

Terri got her CB nickname from a character on the television show "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman."

"Someone on that show had the handle and I liked it," she told a reporter.

Smyrna police and fire departments and Cobb County police escorted Terri's casket from the First United Methodist Church to a nearby cemetery. A squad from the Naval Air Station in neighboring Marietta presented a rifle salute, and a Naval helicopter dipped over the grave as services concluded.

"She reached out to this community and the community responded in love," said the Rev. Larry Caywood.

Request for $10,000 preceded disappearance of Vegas man

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Nevada labor leader Al Bramlet telephoned the Dunes Hotel shortly before he disappeared and asked a hotel executive to deliver $10,000 to a Las Vegas casino, according to Bramlet's wife.

Bramlet, 60, has not been heard from since late last Thursday when he failed to return home from a business trip to Reno. Authorities have no leads, and his union has posted a $25,000 reward for information leading to his whereabouts.

His wife of two months, Barbara, 27, said Bramlet made the telephone call to the Dunes on Thursday night and asked that the money be delivered immediately to a downtown casino.

The call was the last word from Bramlet, head of local 226 of the Culinary Workers Union for the past 24 years and president of the state AFL-CIO for more than a decade.

"I hope we don't have a Hoffa case on our hands," said an investigator, referring to the disappearance of former Teamsters boss James Hoffa 18 months ago.

The unidentified executive, according to Mrs. Bramlet, called the casino where the money was to have beeen delivered and found that officials there knew nothing of the planned delivery.

Mrs. Bramlet said the Dunes didn't deliver any money but the casino agreed to make $10,000 available to anyone who came in asking for it. No one did, she said.

Mrs. Bramlet said she still believes her husband is alive and is being held by kidnapers. "I'm just really hanging on to hope. Now as time goes on, the scales tip the other way, but I think it's still too early to give up hope."

Bramlet, who started his culinary career as a potwasher in Peoria, Ill., in the mid 1930s, rose to power in 1953 by taking over leadership of the local here when the strip was not much more than a two-lane highway. Since then he has guided the local to a membership of 22,000, giving him the power to meet and bargain with the state's top politicians and businessmen.

Last year, Bramlet led the union in a much-publicized strike against a dozen plush resort hotels along the strip and won major benefits for his members. The three-week walkout by bartenders, waitresses, cooks and others cost the local economy an estimated $26 million.

While Bramlet's power has been nearly absolute for many years, in recent months dissidents within the union have become more vocal in their criticism of the union's operation.

Bramlet is being sued by resort hotel bell captains, who contend he sold them out during last year's contract negotiations. The bell captains claim that Bramlet signed a contract allowing the hotels to take over duties they had previously performed, such as obtaining show tickets and arranging for car rentals and guided tours. They also contend that companies in which Bramlet has an interest have been successful in obtaining franchises to provide those services.

House to decide how to slice Carter's $19.5 billion tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives will decide this week how to split up a $19.5 billion individual tax cut proposed by President Carter in an effort to prime the sluggish economy.

Carter wants to spend the money on a one-shot $50-per-person tax rebate and to permanently increase the standard deduction, which generally helps taxpayers on the lower end of the income scale.

Most Republicans and some Democrats prefer a permanent across-the-board tax cut for virtually all taxpayers.

Despite the political appeal of a universal tax cut, there is every indication the House will accept the Carter plan as the only sure way to pump more than $10 billion into the economy within a few weeks.

The two-year tax cut is scheduled for House debate on Thursday, one of the few pieces of legislation to be considered by Congress this week.

Another important bill, to be debated in the House on Tuesday, would extend for one year the government's authority to control interest rates on savings accounts. It also would broaden the powers of credit unions, giving them authority to lend money for home mortgages.

House action is expected Tuesday on a new code of ethics for representatives, which is considered virtually certain to pass because it was made a condition of allowing a 29 per cent pay hike for lawmakers to go into effect. The congressmen got their raises of nearly $13,000 a week ago.

The ethics code is likely to call for extensive financial disclosure, a limit on outside earnings and for other protections against conflict of interest.

The Senate is expected to consider on Thursday the nomination of Paul Warnke to be chairman of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and chief U.S. negotiator at the U.S.-Soviet arms-limitation talks. The nomination has been the most controversial made by Carter.

A compromise budget amendment to accommodate any emergency economic stimulus is slated for work today during the first major Senate-House conference of the new Congress. The House and Senate have passed slightly different amendments that assume — but do not ensure — acceptance of Carter's tax-cut and job-creation plans.

Carter's plan to mail a $50 check to virtually all Americans this spring has been under attack by many in Congress since he first spelled it out. Opponents contend the rebate is an expensive and uncertain way to create jobs counted on to help pull the economy out of recession.

During debate on the budget amendments last week, the House voted 258 to 148 against a Republican alternative that would have cut each separate tax rate by 15 per cent.

The Republican plan was weighted heavily in favor of middle and upper income taxpayers, which likely contributed to its defeat. A similar plan is expected to be proposed this week.

75th birthday

Marian Anderson honored

NEW YORK (AP) — "Dear Marian Anderson, because of you I am."

With those words, soprano Leontyne Price capsulized the feelings of all the performers — black and white — on the Carnegie Hall stage Sunday night for a 75th birthday party for the woman with the "voice one hears once in a hundred years."

First Lady Rosalynn Carter and Mayor Abraham Beame were among the guests who paid homage to the famed black contralto.

Miss Anderson, who received three standing ovations during the three-hour program of song and dance, integrated the nation's concert halls and opera houses more than a quarter of a century ago.

When she was refused use of the Daughters of the American Revolution's Constitution Hall in Washington for a concert in 1939, she became a cause celebre, eventually singing before an Easter Sunday audience estimated at 75,000 on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

"I am profoundly happy. You never know when you start out in life where it will go, but for me I have all you to thank," Miss Anderson told the performers and audience Sunday night.

Mrs. Carter, who sat in a balcony box with Miss Anderson, said the president would sign legislation today authorizing the striking of a gold medal in Miss Anderson's honor. Beame presented Miss Anderson with the Handel Medallion, the city's highest cultural award.

The audience paid up to $1,000 for box seats.

Prior to Miss Price's three-song finale, the Dance Theatre of Harlem entertained with two routines and the Harlem School of the Arts Heritage Society Chorus sang five songs.

The program concluded with Miss Price's singing "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands."

Sudan joins Egypt, Syria

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Sudan is expected to join Egypt and Syria in their two-month-old unified political command at a summit conference of the three nations' chiefs of state now being held in Khartoum.

President Anwar Sadat, arriving Sunday for the three-day meeting with Presidents Hafez Assad of Syria and Jaafar Numaira of Sudan, said their meeting would result in historic decisions beneficial to the whole Arab world.

Egyptian officials said political unification may lead to a federation of the three countries.

Elsewhere in the Middle East:

—King Hussein of Jordan admitted getting money from the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency but denied he used it personally.

—Sadat said Arab-Israeli peace could come within a month if the United States assumed responsibility for arranging a settlement.

4 women hurt slightly

Four women escaped with minor injuries when their car rolled over twice on the driveway of 35 W. 26th St., north of Upland, Sunday afternoon.

They were the driver, Ada Ann Cooper, 58, of 8520 Red Hill Country Club Road, Cucamonga; Jeanne G. Cherbak, 66, of 10210 Base Line Road, Alta Loma; Emily Marek, 72, of Berwin, Ill., and Lilian Marek, 68, of 1932 S. Clinton Ave., Upland. All four were treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and released.

Mrs. Cooper said she was leaving the driveway when the brakes failed. The car left the driveway down an embankment and rolled over.

Mudslide kills 16

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — At least 16 persons were killed and three were missing in a mudslide that buried two villages in northern Argentina during a rainstorm, officials reported today.

They said they feared the casualty toll would rise. It was the worst such occurrence in Argentina since an avalanche of snow in the Andes 11 years ago killed 43 persons.

Authorities said tons of water, mud and stones rained down before dawn Sunday on the villages of Zapla and Finca Carahuinco at the foot of the Andes 200 miles from the Bolivian border.

About 150 survivors were evacuated to nearby villages, officials said. Army and national guard units searching at the scene recovered 16 bodies, including those of 10 children, police and army authorities in San Salvador de Jujuy, the provincial capital, reported. They said an undetermined number of others were injured, and at least three persons were missing.

Valley crime

Market robbed by 2 pros

Two well dressed robbers, believed to be "professionals" robbed the Alpha Beta Market at 829 W. Foothill Blvd. in Upland of more than $1,000 in cash and then stole an employe's car Saturday night, police reported.

Police said the two men, both wearing suits and ties, walked into the store about 10 p.m. after getting out of an orange foreign car containing two women. The men approached the store manager and pulled two .38 caliber revolvers. They ordered the manager to take cash from the safe and put it in a pillow case. The manager complied. The robbers then ordered a store employe to give them the keys to his blue Gremlin car. The robbers fled from the store and drove off in the blue car.

Police said the employe's car was later found abandoned at Magnolia Avenue and Purdue Street.

Officers said the two robbers appeared to be "professionals" because of their method of operation. Store employes described one of the robbers as a white, 35 to 40, 6 feet to 6 feet 2, of medium build, with shoulder length brown hair. He had a full black mustache. He wore sunglasses, a white dress jacket, a light shirt, brown tie and green dress pants.

The second robber was described as white, 30 to 35, 6 feet tall, with shoulder length brown hair and a neatly trimmed goatee or Van Dyke. He was also wearing sunglasses, a rust brown leisure suit, light shirt and brown tie.

The women were both described as whites, wearing white T shirts, and white slacks. Both were blondes.

Officer hurt; 5 arrested

An Ontario reserve police officer was slightly injured and five persons were arrested Sunday after police called to quell a disturbance at 738 W. Sunkist St. were pelted by rocks and bottles.

Reserve Officer Robert Clark was struck by a rock thrown from a crowd of about 60 persons. Another officer, George Sipes, was hit on the helmet by a brick but escaped injuries.

Police were called to the Sunkist Street home shortly before 10 a.m. to break up a fight between several women attending a party.

While attempting to pull the women apart, the officers were pelted by dozens of rocks and bottles thrown from a crowd that had gathered in the area.

Booked in the sheriff's Ontario jail were Godino Carranza, 19, suspicion of obstructing a police officer; Louis Herrea, 19, and Richard Baltazar, 18, suspicion of interferring and resisting an officer. Also arrested were two juveniles on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon on a police officer.

Bingo Truck Stop robbed

Ontario police are seeking a gunman who robbed the Bingo Truck Stop, 4330 E. G St., of cash Sunday night.

The gunman entered the office and asked a woman clerk for a pack of cigarettes. He then pulled a revolver and demanded the clerk to hand him cash and checks from the cash register. Before fleeing he ordered the woman to lie on the floor.

The robber was described as about 25 years old, black, 6 feet tall, weighing 160 pounds and having a small "pencil" type mustache and wearing a brown nylon jacket with fur collar.

Service station robbed

A man armed with a revolver and wearing a red ski mask robbed Vince's Mobil service station at 2207 W. Valley Blvd. in Pomona Sunday night.

The 19-year-old attendant told police that he was returning from the pump area to the office when he was intercepted by the gunman. The man threatened the employe with the weapon and took the cash before fleeing with a companion.

The robber was described as black, about 20, 6 feet tall weighing 170 pounds. In addition to the mask he wore a dark-blue jacket and dark trousers.

Motorcyclist injured

A Los Angeles man suffered facial injuries Saturday night when he drove his motorcycle into a field at the end of Temple Avenue near Mission Boulevard, Pomona police reported.

Officers said Mark A. Johnson, 22, was northbound in Temple when he ran out of road. The street ends near the intersection with Mission.

Johnson was hurled from his motorcycle. He was taken first to San Dimas Community Hospital where he was treated and was transferred later to County-USC Medical Center.

Hospital patient dies

A 7-year-old patient at Pomona's Pacific State Hospital died in its intensive-care unit early Sunday morning.

Police reported they were told by hospital personnel that the victim, Scott Neal Clay, apparently died as the result of pneumonia.

Multiculture training program starts

The Claremont School District today will begin its district-wide multicultural-ethnic awareness training for all staff members.

The first session will be held at Sycamore Elementary School auditorium from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. when Richard Smith of the Dignity of Man Foundation will present a general program.

Similar programs will be held at the school Tuesday and Wednesday.

Smith will be available during the week to work with the staffs at various schools and to help develop strategies for incorporating multicultural concepts into the classroom.

All certificated staff members are expected to attend one of the three general programs. Classified staff members are encouraged to attend if their supervisor finds it possible to authorize their attendance.

Cost of gun no crime deterrent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Guntoting criminals are as apt to work with a high-priced model as they are with a cheaper "Saturday night special," a new two-year study says.

The report, released Sunday by the Police Foundation, a private organization which promotes research on police issues, says its finding may challenge claims that banning the cheaper handgun models could go a long way toward reducing crime.

The study, financed by the Ford Foundation, also concluded that gun thefts, a growing national problem, receive little attention from state, federal and local law enforcement agencies.

At least 200,000 legally-owned guns are stolen from individuals each year, with an undetermined number taken from businesses, the report said.

But researchers said none of the 10 police departments surveyed concentrates on catching gun thiefs and only New York City police have taken steps to prevent gun thefts.

The study was based on data furnished by the FBI, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and police departments in 10 large cities. The researchers analyzed a sampling of records of guns confiscated during different times in 1974, 1975 and 1976.

"Analysis of types of firearms confiscated suggests that price is not a significant factor in the handguns used for the commission of crimes. The data indicate that expensive handguns are used as often as inexpensive ones," the report concluded.

The Police Foundation, headed by Patrick Murphy, former New York City police commissioner, said two manufacturers of moderate - to - expensive pistols accounted for about one-fourth of the 5,547 weapons seized in the three years in the study.

Only 15.9 per cent of the confiscated weapons were produced by companies whose primary business is manufacturing the cheap pistols known as Saturday night specials.

Advocates of laws to prohibit such guns say the action would help control crime.

The report said its finding about the types of guns confiscated "bears directly on the potential of legislative proposals to ban certain types of handguns based on their quality."

The report estimated about 80 per cent of the confiscated guns had been used in crimes. The rest were voluntarily turned in by citizens or found by police.

Mexico banking on an old resource

Silver threads among the pesos

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican government is falling back on an abundant resource, first tapped more than 400 years ago, in an effort to restore the nation's economic stability. It is silver.

The Mexico City mint soon will start turning out silver coins which the government hopes investors and speculators will buy instead of sending their money out of the country.

The mint has announced it will produce 100-peso ($5) coins, each weighing 20 grams and containing 72 per cent silver mixed with nickel and zinc for durability and consistency. They are expected to go on sale in the spring.

It will be the largest denomination of any coin ever minted in Mexico. The mint issued the Juarez 25-peso piece in 1972 and another commemorative of the same denomination was struck to mark the 1968 Mexico Olympic Games.

The new silver piece was the idea of President Jose Lopez Portillo, who took office Dec. 1, following a sharp economic decline that saw a flight of money from the country.

The production of the coins revives a tradition dating back to 1535, when the mint began making "pieces of eight," the silver pesos prized by kings and pursued by pirates.

At that time, when Spain owned Mexico, both silver and gold coins were minted. The silver coins were in denominations of one, two, four and eight "reales." Silver coins of that era are worth $1,000 to $5,000 each today, according to coin dealer Santiago Ferrer Jimenez. There also was an eight-escudo gold coin, which he says now is worth $5,000 or more.

The new silver coins will hardly make a dent in Mexico's supply of silver, which is mined in 18 of the countries 31 states.

Mexico is the world's leading silver producer, followed closely by Peru and Canada and then the United States. The Mexican silver mines accounted for 13 per cent of world production in 1975 — more than 2.8 million pounds worth about $168 million.

In the 4½ centuries since the Spanish conquest, Mexico has extracted more than 528 million pounds of silver, which at today's prices would be worth at least $30 billion.

During the silver age, a 250-year period after the conquest, New Spain, as Mexico was called then, shipped two-thirds of the world's supply through the port of Veracruz. One mine in the state of Guanajuato yielded a fifth of the world's silver production before the 19th century.

Miners in the state of Guanajuato are still digging silver out of veins first tapped more than 400 years ago.

The "La Valenciana" mine, which opened in the 18th century, is one of the big producers. Legend has it that its original owner placed a rug of pure silver from the mine entrance to the city cathedral on the day of his daughter's marriage.

Miners, bankers and jewelers agree there seems to be no end in sight of the rich veins flowing through the land.

"The potential of the mines is incalculable," said a recent edition of "Mineria," the official publication of the Mexican Mining Chamber.

"It is very difficult to know the amount still underground," said Lozano Gallo, a leading Mexico City silversmith. "There is no way to calculate reserves."

Jaime Mercado, editor of "Mineria," said Mexican production has been increasing since it regained world leadership in 1975 for the first time since 1967.

The latest chamber figures, those from 1975, indicate Mexico produced some 38 million troy ounces, which at $4.41 an ounce, was worth $168 million.

Bankers who deal in silver estimated last year's production was about 42 million troy ounces, but because the average price dropped to $4 an ounce, the silver earned about the same as in 1975.

About 80 per cent of Mexico's silver is exported to other countries, where photographic and chemical industries use most of it. The United States is a major importer of Mexican silver.

The rest is used by Mexican industries and Mexican silversmiths, who account for about 10 per cent.

The silversmiths are having a hard time right now, adjusting to a recently imposed 30 per cent luxury tax, the devaluation of the peso and a deflated international prices for silver. About 30 per cent of the country's silversmiths are unemployed.

Salvador de la Serna, who has spent decades in the business and has a shop in Mexico City, said there are about 10,000 Mexican silversmiths, operating out of some 300 shops concentrated in Mexico City, Taxco and the state of Guanajuato.

New grain varieties

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma Agricultural Experiment Station here has developed a new wheat variety moderately resistant to the wheat streak mosaic virus and a new high-yielding barley variety.

The new wheat, named Rall, was bred specifically for the Oklahoma Panhandle and Western counties where this virus has been a major problem for growers.

The new barley variety, named Post, has outyielded two of the major varieties used in most of this state. It is named for the Oklahoma aviator Wiley Post.

Palestinian state: an issue at crossroads

EDITOR'S NOTE — The movement for an independent Palestinian state has reached a crucial crossroads as Arab nations push for negotiations with Israel on a Middle East peace. Following is the first of two articles examining where the Palestinian state question stands today.

By EDWARD CODY
Associated Press Writer

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank (AP) — In a major shift, Palestinians and their guerrilla leaders have turned reluctantly toward the idea of negotiations with Israel and a halt to the bloody conflict that has made the Middle East a battleground for 30 years.

The change provides a new opportunity for peace in the world's most war-prone region. But it also carries the seeds of bitter disappointment and the risk of yet another war to burn the land of the Bible.

The Palestinian stand has softened chiefly because of the guerrilla debacle last year in Lebanon's Moslem-Christian civil war. Defeat chastened the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO), eliminated its last free operations base against Israel and left it subject to control by Syria.

"What else can we do?" lamented Raymonda Tawil, a Palestinian activist released Dec. 8 from house arrest by the Israelis in nearby Ramallah. "Is there an alternative for us? I mean, we are becoming moderate because we have to. Politics is the art of the possible. Can we continue to be killed forever?"

Syria, backed by Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, is now hobbling hardline rejectionist commandos in Beirut and molding Yasir Arafat's mainline PLO leadership into conciliatory positions for the Geneva Peace Conference that Arab states are trying to reconvene in 1977.

Broadly, these positions aim at a Palestinian state on the Israeli-held West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip with close links to Jordan, in exchange for an end to the Arabs' generation-old declaration of war against Israel and the Palestinian dream of abolishing the Jewish state.

The Israelis refuse to negotiate with the PLO and would not agree to a separate third state between Israel and Jordan. However, Israel has said it would negotiate with Palestinians — although not leading PLO personalities — who are members of a Jordanian - led delegation. Any solution, the Israelis say, would have to be within the framework of negotiations with Jordan and any settlement of the West Bank must be closely associated with or part of Jordan.

The Arab states' peace offensive hinges on hope that U.S. President Jimmy Carter's new administration can — and will — pressure Israel enough to compromise with the Palestinians in a way both sides can accept.

Many top guerrilla leaders claim this will never happen and predict the exercise ultimately will end in despair and "explosive pressure" on Arab leaders now dragging Palestinians into peace talks.

"The road is blocked in front of these leaders and nobody knows what Carter is going to give to negotiate about," said Yasir Abed Rabbo, a member of the PLO Executive Committee in Beirut. "They are the only parties running for this settlement and this is their crisis."

But most Palestinians interviewed during a tour of this Israeli-occupied territory seem to accept the forced moderation as a regrettable but inevitable development in their struggle to regain a homeland. Even those who have little hope of success say conciliation should be given a chance.

"We have to change tactics and methods now or we will be the losers," said the Rev. Elia Khoury, an Anglican priest and PLO Executive Committee member who has lived in Jordan since being expelled from the West Bank by Israeli occupation authorities. "We do not want to be called terrorists all the time." The sentiment for compromise is strongest inside the West Bank and Gaza because more than a million Palestinians have lived here under Israeli military occupation since the June 1967 Middle East war.

Their resentment at the occupiers was visible here in Nablus during a Feb. 1 general strike that sent stone-throwing youths into the streets and forced about 80 per cent of the town's shopkeepers to roll down steel shutters.

A machine-gun-mounted armored vehicle guarded the main Nablus intersection and armed Israeli patrols roamed the markets. Several shots were heard and eight youths were arrested, but no injuries were reported.

Local leaders such as Nablus Mayor Bassam Shakaa and other West Bank mayors see getting rid of such Israeli occupation as their number one priority.

Shakaa, who sat at home while the Israeli soldiers patrolled his city, fears along with other West Bank leaders that the Israeli presence here, highly visible after 10 years of military occupation. could turn out to be irrevocable.

A visitor returning for the first time since before the 1967 war, for example, is startled at changes in Jerusalem. Busy avenues and low-cost housing for Jewish settlers burgeon near the Old City's ancient walls, where pastoral calm used to delight the tourist.

"If we wait another 10 years like the PLO wants, the Jews will build twice as much as they have in the last 10 years," complains Mayor Elias Freij of Bethlehem, a moderate considered friendly to Jordan. "And what will be left for us then? We need a homeland, whatever homeland is possible."

That also seems to be the conclusion of the major Arab powers. They are force-feeding such moderate thinking into the Palestinian National Council, a Palestinian parliament with final say in PLO policy.

The Syrian-engineered packing operation has resulted in expansion of the council from 180 to 350 members, reports from Syria say. This grew from a compromise between hardliners, fighting to hold onto 180 trusted voters, and moderates, trying to raise the total to 450.

At stake is the PLO stand on resuming Geneva peace talks. Syria, Jordan and the PLO's right wing feel the new membership stream will bring in enough moderates to make sure conciliatory Syrian and Egyptian-backed policies become official Palestinian dogma.

"Eventually, it will result in a more sober Palestinian movement," said a high-placed Palestinian resident in Jordan working to broaden the council membership. "The Syrians want a Palestinian movement, but behind desks to sit and chat. That's why they trimmed it in Lebanon."

The Beirut-based Arafat leadership is maneuvering to retain as many "playing cards" as possible, refusing to make compromise suggestions until Israel also comes up with some. The struggle has forced two postponements of the decisive council meeting, first set for Cairo in January, then in February, now in March.

Ebell Club sets program and tea

The March 4 Ebell tea and program will feature a book review by Mrs. Gretchen Lizer Ulf.

GRETCHEN ULF

Mrs. Ulf was a resident of Norfolk, Neb. until graduation from high school. She received a B. A. degree from UCLA and did graduate work at USC in speech and interpretative reading; attended Pasadena Playhouse School of the Theater and studied radio and television technique at NBC. She taught speech and drama at Chaffey High School and was professor of speech at Chaffey College.

Mrs. Ulf is presently president of Pomona Valley East Division of Claremont Presbyterian California Retired Teachers.

Paintings on display for the new month are the work of George T. Yanok who studied at the Landon School of Cartooning and later attended the Hartford Art School. He was cartoonist for Happy Days, a national weekly. He recently retired from General Dynamics where he was a tool designer.

Claremont DAR unit will meet

Guest Day will be observed by Claremont Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Thursday when the group meets at Mt. San Antonio Gardens in Pomona. Dessert will be served at 1:30 p.m.

A feature of the meeting will be the presentation of Good Citizen awards to four outstanding young people of the area.

Speaker will be the Rev. T. E. Mails, who has published three books on Indian folkways. A collection of 50 of his oil paintings and 50 drawings used to illustrate his books is currently on exhibit at the Museum of Man in Balboa Park, San Diego. His topic will be "Mystic Warriors of the Plains."

Miss Helen Gipson is chairman of arrangements and will be assisted by Mmes. Larry I. Dean, Edward C. Harrison, James C. Greer, Harry D. Lovelady, Milton C. Peterson, Clarence R. Wagner and Miss Nora G. Frisbie and Miss Marianna C. Hallock.

Chapters of PEO will meet

Chapter CS, PEO Sisterhood, when it meets at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, will hear a discussion on dresses of the presidents' wives by Mrs. Gerald Litel.

The group will meet in the home of Mrs. Robert Machulies, 2284 La Paz St., Claremont. Officers will be elected during the evening.

Cohostesses will be Mrs. Ellen Stuart, Mrs. Donald Redman and Mrs. Noel Shutt.

Members of Chapter O, PEO Sisterhood, will meet at 11 a.m. Thursday in the home of Mrs. Edward Hauch, Claremont. The program, "Open Door to Music," will be presented by Kenneth Orr.

Assisting hostesses will be Mmes. Vere Farmer, Robert Anderson, Donald Wheeler and Howard Wright.

When Chapter MG, PEO Sisterhood, meets Thursday at noon in the home of Mrs. H. K. Folsom, 950 Hillcrest Drive, Pomona, the program will be presented by Phyllis Rider.

Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Grant Quist and Mrs. V. D. Farrand.

Joyce Brothers

Cool child's temper

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: What do you do with a girl who throws temper tantrums and creates scenes to get whatever she wants? My daughter has a terrible temper and has had as long as I can remember. Her brothers never were problems, at least, not in this way. She waits until we have company when she knows she has us up a tree. She's 5 and I wonder what will happen if she behaves this way when she goes to kindergarten. We'd like to break her of this habit before she starts school. — J.P.

DEAR J.P.: Don't allow yourselves to be blackmailed by these emotional outbursts. If you allow your child to win, to get her own way when she creates scenes in public places, then she quickly learns that this is the route to success. Both she and you will pay heavy penalties later.

When your daughter throws a temper tantrum leave the room or, if you have company, simply remove her from the room and close the door. Children or adults who throw tantrums usually want, and need, an audience.

Temper tantrums in children don't necessarily mean they will grow up to be unmanageable, destructive people. All children have an outburst once in a while. The kind of behavior you describe is most common in children aged 3 to 6. Temper and tears in children usually signal emotional distress so it's important to discover what it is that really is troubling your daughter. Rarely will it be the specific thing she's asking for; the roots usually go much deeper.

Often, bad temper is caused by jealousy. Your daughter may be envious of her brothers. It's important for you and your husband to take stock of how you feel about girls and boys and make very sure that you're not penalizing your daughter for being a girl.

DEAR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS: I wish I could hide my feelings, but whenever I feel embarrassed or ill at ease, I turn red so everyone knows exactly how I feel. I'm shy and it's quite agonizing for me to go to parties or to get up in front of anyone to speak. — R.H.

DEAR R.H.: Shy people usually have too great a fear of failure. They are often perfectionists who feel if they make one mistake, the world will collapse. One way to overcome this is to make deliberate mistakes and then watch people's reactions. You may find others don't even notice. The shy person never has enough confidence around others. He is overly critical of himself and afraid to express himself for fear of rejection.

Before you go to a party, it may help relieve anxiety if you think of several topics that interest you and plan to discuss them. Chances are if you're excited and stimulated by these subjects, your enthusiasm will be contagious and others will become relaxed in your presence.

It also helps to remember that you're not the only shy person in the world. A recent study revealed that most Americans consider themselves shy and feel uncomfortable and anxious in large groups of people. Americans may be unusually shy because we place so much importance on being liked.

The more confidence you develop in yourself, the less likely you will be to blush. The blusher usually is trying to communicate something, which is why blushing occurs only in the face where it's seen. He often wants to tell other people that what they may be thinking about him isn't true.

Once you build up your self-esteem you won't be so concerned about what the others think of you and you probably won't turn red from embarrassment.

Giant of gems

The largest diamond ever found was the great Cullinan, discovered almost by accident in a South African diamond mine. The Cullinan weighed in a 3,106 carats, or about a pound and a third, and was as big as a man's fist. From the Cullinan rough were cut 96 small brilliants, 9 carats of polished fragments, and 9 major gems, the largest of which is the Cullinan I. Property of the British Crown, it weighs 530 carats and is still the largest cut diamond in the world.

Speaker scheduled for meet

Tam Trevino of Anaheim will be the speaker at the meeting, Tuesday, of Trinity United Methodist Women to be held in the chapel at 10:30 a.m.

Mr. Trevino is one of five young people from this conference to attend the World Methodist Conference in Dublin, Ireland. He was a member of the youth convocation and is presently a student at Fullerton College.

The program will also include folk music by Mrs. William Harris who will accompany herself on the guitar. Sue Kane and Alice Naugle will give the devotions.

Members are requested to participate in a food shower for the Pomona Resource Center.

At the noon luncheon birthdays for January, February and March will be honored. Table hostesses will be members of Martha Friendship Group and kitchen assistance will be given by members of Mary unit.

Love 'em or hate 'em

No middle ground with snowmobiles

NEWFOUNDLAND, Pa. (AP) — Snowmobiles can open the door to wintry excitement. And they can put ruts in front lawns, interfere with television reception and turn sleeping dogs to howling.

At their worst, snowmobiles can be dangerous, even fatal.

But the gas-powered machines can mean endless hours of family fun.

"There is a lot of controversy about snowmobiling," said Dutch Butler of the Wayne-Pike Counties Snow Rovers Club. "People either love them or hate them."

Snowmobiles range in price from $1,000 to over $2,000, with engines from 30 to 50 horsepower.

Pennsylvania sets aside 900 miles of snowmobile tracks in its state forests and gamelands. Another 1,600 miles is provided for joint use by snowmobilers and others.

But growing popularity has crowded public trails, and some private landowners won't allow the machines. And there is a growing concern about safety.

"The lack of trails has caused more controversy than anything else," said Butler, who bought his first snowmobile eight years ago and now owns four. His wife, two sons and two grandchildren all ride.

"The way it is now, we have an area here and an area there. We're working to find a way to somehow link them. If you could someway connect them, making a trail that would run for 50 miles, you could really have a ball."

But, he added, "If someone's riding around at 4 a.m. and that starts your dog barking, it upsets some people who are trying to sleep. But you have people who misuse something in just about any sport. It's like trail bikes and motorcycles."

The state requires every machine operated outside a family property be registered. In 1977, 70,000 paid the $10 registration fee.

Almanac

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1977. There are 306 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1942, the last Allied bastion in the Dutch East Indies, the island of Java, was invaded by Japan.

On this date:

In 1483, the Italian painter Raphael was born in Urbino, Italy.

In 1808, French forces captured Barcelona, Spain.

In 1844, U.S. Secretary of State Abel Upshur, Secretary of the Navy Thomas Gilmer and three others were killed when a gun exploded on a navy ship during an excursion down the Potomac River.

In 1933, a Nazi decree supressed civil liberties in Germany.

In 1946, Switzerland announced that its army would quit using the Prussian goose step when marching.

In 1966, U.S. astronauts Elliot See and Charles Bassett were killed when their jet trainer crashed into an aerospace plant in St. Louis.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson picked Ramsey Clark for attorney general. Clark's father, Justice Tom Clark of the Supreme Court, was to resign to avoid any conflict of interest.

Five years ago: It was announced the Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and the senate minority leader, Hugh Scott, had been invited to visit mainland China.

One year ago: President Gerald Ford denounced Cuba's Premier Fidel Castro as an international outlaw for sending 12,000 troops to interfere in a civil war in Angola.

Thought for today: Experience teaches us only one thing at a time — and hardly that in my case. — Mark Twain, American humorist, 1835-1910.

ALL FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME STATEMENTS FILED IN 1972 MUST BE REFILED IN 1977

(if the business is still operating)

AND ALSO

those with changes must be republished at the time of refiling

HERE IS THE LAW —
(Business and Professions Code)

Sec. 17917
(c) Where a new statement is required because the prior statement has expired under subdivision (a) of Section 17920, the new statement need not be published unless there has been a change in the information required in the expired statement.

Sec. 17920
(a) Unless the statement expires earlier under subdivision (b) or (c), a fictitious business name statement expires at the end of five years from December 31 of the year in which it was filed in the office of the county clerk.

Sec. 17917
(b) Subject to the requirements of subdivision (a), the newspaper selected for the publication of the statement should be one that circulates in the area where the business is to be conducted.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON THE FIVE-YEAR FICTITIOUS NAME LAW

1. QUESTION: When do new requirements in the Fictitious Name Law go into effect?
ANSWER: Beginning January 1, 1977, all statements filed during 1972 must be refilled with the County Clerk.

2. QUESTION: Who must file the required new statement of doing business under a fictitious name?
ANSWER: All individuals, partnerships, trusts, corporations and associations which operate under names not their own must refile.

3. QUESTION: Is there a statutory fee for refiling?
ANSWER: Yes, by law the County Clerk must charge $10.00.

4. QUESTION: Will 1972 registrants receive notification that they must refile in 1977?
ANSWER: Yes, the law requires the County Clerk to give such notice at least two months before the end of the year 1977. In Los Angeles County, where some 35,000 statements were filed and published in 1972, notification will begin to go to registrants in January, 1977, when all those who registered in January, February or March, 1972, will receive notice with the offer of forms for refiling. In April, similarly, those who filed in April, May or June, 1972, will be notified and in July those who filed in July, August or September, 1972; and in December those who filed in October, November and December, 1972.

5. QUESTION: Must statements when refiled be republished?
ANSWER: Yes, if there has been any change in the statement as originally filed in 1972.

6. QUESTION: What is a Fictitious Firm Name?
ANSWER: One that does not include the surname of the operator, or one that implies the ownership participation of others such as "Brothers", "Sons", "Associates", "Company"; or if a corporation owner, a name different from that registered in the Articles of Incorporation.

7. QUESTION: What is the purpose of the fictitious name procedure?
ANSWER: The requirements have been in effect in California since 1872 and are designed to protect the consumer by enabling him to identify the person or persons with whom he is really dealing.

8. QUESTION: Must all firms presently doing business under fictitious names file new statements?
ANSWER: Yes, all must refile under new code sections of the Business and Professions Code, 17900-17930 and also Sections 7540 and 101595 and Section 10522.5 of the Business and Professions Code.

9. QUESTION: Is it true that a mere change in the residence address of an individual or general partner doing business under a registered fictitious name excuses the party at the five year refiling interval from meeting the publication provision which requires a new publication "if there has been a change of information in the expired statement"?
ANSWER: The wording, "change in the residence address" in Section 17920 of Business and Professions Code is confusing: It has reference only to the statutory expiration of any Fictitious Business Name Statement "40 days after any change in the facts." Changes in residence address are specifically exempted from the changes which invalidate a fictitious name filing. The requirements for publication with "any change in the information" is in Section 17917 of the Business and Professions Code. It is not related to the exemption in Section 17920. It has been held that change in any residential address, as well as business address, is a "change in information" and will therefore require republication upon renewal at the end of any five year renewal period.

10. QUESTION: Must statements filed in 1973 be refiled in 1978, those filed in 1974 in 1979, and so on?
ANSWER: Yes, statements must be refiled every five years.

11. QUESTION: What is the penalty for failure to file and publish?
ANSWER: One penalty will be inability to entertain a court action until the law has been complied with. In addition, most banks demand evidence of filing and publication prior to opening an account under a fictitious name.

12. QUESTION: On a first filing must there be a newspaper publication?
ANSWER: Yes, the refiling law does not excuse first filers from meeting the statutory publishing requirements.

13. QUESTION: Where are the printed forms to be obtained for this filing and publication procedure?
ANSWER: Free forms and service are available at this newspaper office or at any office of the County Clerk.

14. QUESTION: What is the cost of filing and publication?
ANSWER: Statutory filing fee for the Fictitious Name Statement, either new or refiled, inclusive of mandatory certification of a copy by the County Clerk, is $10.00. Publication charge for the four insertions of the notice is determined by the newspaper.

15. QUESTION: Can two fictitious name businesses operating under different names of the same address and owned by the same person or persons be filed and published under a single statement?
ANSWER: Yes, more than one business name can be listed on the single statement provided all have the same address of business. Each separate business is to be indicated.

16. QUESTION: After January 1, 1977, will all new filings require publication?
ANSWER: All new filings will require publication.

17. QUESTION: Precisely what is the process for publishing?
ANSWER: Publication must be made once a week for four weeks in a qualified newspaper circulating in the area of the affected business. Publication must be commenced within 30 days after filing. A proof of publication must be filed with the County Clerk within 30 days after completion of publication.

18. QUESTION: What other values do registrants gain through publication of Fictitious Firm Name?
ANSWER: Evidential proof of priority is established in the event competitors later use or file under the same name. Also, there is direct advertising value for the firm through multiple insertions of name and address of the business, it being noted that newspaper frequently print such names in black face type in capital letters, separately spaced.

We would suggest you take care of your filing as early as possible; due to mail service and the county clerk's heavy load of applications, we cannot be responsible for any late submissions.

Ceramics show set at Scripps

Sixteen young artists from across the country will exhibit their work in the 33rd Ceramics Annual in Lang Gallery, Scripps College, Friday through April 6.

"Each artist will be represented by up to six pieces," explains Ann LeVeque, associate director of the gallery. "This allows the exhibition to reflect a cross section of new trends and techniques that are being used." One of the most popular exhibitions of the year, the Ceramics Annual attracts ceramics students from all over Southern California "who want to see what other young people are doing."

Originally, the ceramics exhibition featured the work of established American potters like Maija Grotell, Marguerite Wildenhain and Gertrude and Otto Natzler. In the late 60's however, under the direction of Scripps ceramics professor Paul Soldner, the format and purpose changed to its present emphasis. Soldner, who organizes the exhibit each year, now requests prominent artists and teachers to invite promising younger ceramicists to exhibit instead.

Lang Gallery is open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. daily and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays. Admission is free.

Art museum adds a wing

OBERLIN, Ohio (AP) — Oberlin College has added a new wing to its Allen Memorial Art Museum and art department. The new wing, which with renovations to the existing facility, cost $3.3 million, increases by 50 per cent the amount of museum gallery space. "After Harvard and Yale, there isn't a better college art museum in the United States than Oberlin's" says Dr. Sherman E. Lee, director of the prestigious Cleveland Art Museum.

RENDER UNTO CAESAR — Actress Elizabeth Ashley embraces Rex Harrison at a party in New York Thursday following the opening of George Bernard Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra"

Jazz groups plan benefit

The Chaffey College Jazz Ensemble, directed by Jack Mason, and the Vocal Jazz Ensemble of Cal State Long Beach, conducted by John Prince, will present a concert in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8 p.m. Friday.

The program is sponsored by the Covina alumnae chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota, honorary music fraternity for women. The proceeds will be used for the organization's scholarship fund, from which a $300 scholarship is awarded annually to an outstanding woman music student from a Southern California college or university.

The Chaffey College Jazz Ensemble has performed on college campuses throughout the West in the past three years. It has been invited to be guest band at the New Westminster Jazz Festival in Vancouver, British Columbia, later this month.

The 16-member Vocal Jazz Ensemble is chosen from more than 100 applicants. Among the numbers they sing are compositions by Prince and Gene Puerling, both well-known for their arrangements for swing choirs and television shows.

Tickets are $3 for adults, $1.50 for students and children. Information can be obtained at 599 — 6619.

Musical slated at Bridges

Voices, Inc., a professional black musical theater group from New York, will present "Harlem Heyday" in Bridges Hall, Pomona College, at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Admission is free.

The off-Broadway musical is sponsored by the Black Studies Center of the Claremont Colleges.

Lover librarian

Giovanni Jacopo Casanova (1725-1798) whose name has became a synonym for the romantic adventurer, spent his last years as a librarian for the Count of Waldstein in Bohemia.

MSAC to offer mystery

The Mt. San Antonio College Players will present Agatha Christie's long-running mystery play, "The Mousetrap," in the Little Theater at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and March 11 and 12. Tickets are $1.25.

Drama instructor Carter Doran directs. Members of the cast are April Vahle, Mollie Ralston; Brant Johnson, Giles Ralston; Michael Hart, Christopher Wren; Donna Katzian, Mrs. Boyle; ; Bill Wingfield, Maj. Metcalf; Chris Michalski, Miss Casewell; Will Decker, Mr. Paravicini, and Owen Anthony, Det. Trotter.

Miss Christie wrote more than 60 novels, some 200 short stories and several plays. "The Mousetrap" opened in London in 1952 and is still playing.

Crying towel

The phrase "crying towel" originated as army slang during World War II and was said in derision about a chronic complainer.

Ringworm is the name of a very common skin disease. The medical name for it is "tinea."

Ringworm is not caused by a worm, but by infection by tiny plants known as fungi which feed on the protein-building material in the skin.

A common ringworm sore starts as a small red spot on the skin. This quickly grows larger, sometimes the size of a silver dollar. There may be some blisters and a slight itching or burning sensation.

The infection seems to heal in the center, and the ringworm sore appears as a red, scaly ring. There may be one or several patches of ringworm.

Common ringworm of the skin is often seen on children. It is very contagious, and it can be spread by animals as well as by humans.

Ringworm can usually be easily cured by a doctor. He will help you to get rid of it as quickly as possible and see to it that it does not spread to other parts of the body.

Lakers get A for team effort

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — The Lakers got an "A" for effort and also for Abernathy Sunday night.

Another excellent team effort resulted in a 106-101 victory over the Houston Rockets.

Abernathy, the 6-7 rookie, a third-round draft choice, had his best game to date in the NBA. He played 31 minutes, more than twice as much as any other non-starter.

As a result, he scored a season-high 18 points and pulled down seven rebounds. His shooting chart showed six of nine field goal attempts and a perfect six for six at the free throw line.

"Tom is the smartest rookie player I've ever seen," praised coach Jerry West. "He's made as great a contribution to our club as any rookie to any club in the league.

"I had no idea he scored so many points. He does so many intangible things out there that I don't pay much attention to how much he scores."

Abernathy and his "second-unit" teammates got the Lakers going in the second quarter. The starters, aside from Kareem Abdul Jabbar, hadn't been able to do much in the first 12 minutes.

The Angelenos were lucky to be down only 28-20. They trailed 20-8 after the first seven minutes. In the period, they hit a miserable 36 percent of their shots (9-of-25) while the Rockets connected on 14 of 20 (70 percent).

Jabbar had half the Laker points and four of their seven rebounds. Houston had 15 boards.

But Abernathy and his team fellow reserves showed the starters how to box out against the taller Texans. It was the second unit's best performance since the injury to Kermit Washington.

Abernathy played all but the last 49 seconds of the quarter (in place of Don Ford). Earl Tatum was in for 11 minutes and Johnny Neumann 10.

The Lakers not only outscored the Rockets, 31-24, to move to within one point, 52-51, but they also outrebounded the visitors, 16-14.

Houston "fouled itself up in the second half. The result was 27 Laker free throws of which they made 23. The Rockets got only seven and made them all. In the first half, the Angelenos made five of seven, Houston two of four.

West's incredible misfits caught and passed Houston in the third quarter. But after building up a seven-point lead, 73-66, they went dead in the water. Houston outscored them 14-6 in the last 3:20 and it was when the period ended.

Highlight of the quarter came when Jabbar intercepted a pass, dribbled (galloped is probably a better description) the length of court and slam dunked as the crowd of 13,397 went wild.

Kareem was supreme all night long. Heading for a third straight MVP award, the giant center added eight blocked shots, his season high, to his 29 points and 11 rebounds.

The Angelenos went dead again in the fourth quarter after building up a 96-84 lead. Houston couldn't buy a basket and hit on only one of 11 shots. The Rockets went nearly six minutes (5:55 to be exact) without scoring while the Lakers blitzed them, 15-0.

Then the Rockets scored nine straight to pull within three, 96-93. But three was as close as they could get. They did it twice more, at 102-99, and 104-101.

Abernathy scored eight of his points in the last period. But it was fitting that the game ended with Jabbar getting his eighth block.

"We really played well against a very fine basketball team" said West. "I tell you Houston is going to be tough in the playoffs. They have very good personnel and are well coached."

LAKER LEFTOVERS — Moses Malone led the Rockets with 19 points and 19 rebounds in 33 minutes of play. The Houston front line of Kevin Kunnert at center and Malone and Rudy Tomjanovich outboarded the Laker starters, 40-19.

Ford finished with five points and five rebounds in 22 minutes. At halftime, he hadn't scored and showed only one rebound. His first basket came 2:09 into the third quarter.

The Lakers are now 27-3 at the Forum and 38-22 overall. They still have the second best record in the NBA. Denver now is 40-20.

Sunday night's game was the finale of a six-game road trip for the Rockets. They won three (over San Antonio, Phoenix and Portland) and lost three (to Kansas City, Denver and the Lakers). The Rockets haven't beaten the Lakers at the Forum in three years.

Before hosting the Chicago Bulls Friday night and Cleveland Sunday, the Lakers visit Atlanta (TV) Tuesday and Houston Wednesday.

Time of change for sports world

In an era of change, has anything changed as much as the world of sports in the last five years?

Professional sports, suffering from massively inflated salaries, is entering a period of upheaval that may see the number of teams sharply reduced.

Selfish, greedy athletes and weak-willed owners have allowed finances to get out of hand. The golden goose is surely in critical condition.

Hockey appears to be in the worst state. The entire World Hockey Association (WHA) is unlikely to survive. The NHL Cleveland Barons are going under and several other franchises are in trouble.

The National Basketball Association has been staggering along for years. The merger with the surviving four ABA teams removes some of the pressure.

But 28 teams, many of which have had trouble making money, still are too many. Some of them may go down the drain.

Expansion has terribly diluted everything. Too many games, too many events are available, free, on television. Too many games are dull. Too many teams are dull.

Baseball, which always seems to be years late, has chosen to expand again. With quality already diluted to half of what it was 17 years ago, new teams will be playing in Seattle and Toronto this summer.

You go over the rosters of these teams and you wonder how anyone could ever get very interested in such sad sack outfits.

Why not contract?

What the two baseball leagues, the NFL, the NBA and the NHL all need is contraction not expansion.

Sports at the high school and college level are in the throes of great change.

The addition of girls teams already produced vast changes in college and prep athletics and more are on the way.

Listen to what former Rams great Elroy Hirsch says. Hirsch, athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, simply doesn't know how most schools, including Wisconsin, are going to be able to get the money to run their athletic programs.

"Title IX will change athletics so much in the next few years, you won't believe it," Hirsch says. "The women deserve it and it's federal law. But where are we gonna get the money?

"We must fund 12 non-revenue women's sports, give them $250,000 a year, equal facilities, equal time in the facilities, equal travel and equal scholarships.

"If we give 80 scholarships to the men, we have to give 80 to the women. That's 160 grants and we can't afford it," he continued.

"Sometime we're going to have to get realistic about non-revenue sports — both men's and women's — or we're all going down the drain.

"Three sports at Wisconsin, football, basketball and hockey, cannot subsidize 25 non-revenue sports. It's impossible.

"We're in a position where I have to tell my football coach, my basketball coach and my hockey coach, 'you go out and recruit like hell, make lots of dough, and fill the stadiums to support these other sports or you'll be fired.

"It's terrible. You never hear about a tennis coach or soccer coach getting fired."

A national problem

Hirsch was merely voicing the problem confronting athletic directors and administrators all over the country.

The schools face great problems in financing their athletic programs. The girls, in turn, face obstacles in obtaining recognition of their efforts.

There is only so much space in a newspaper. In each department a daily decision is made as to what stories get top play and the most space.

Since readers have many and varied individual favorite interests, what you try to do is give the biggest play to the things the biggest number of readers are likely to be interested in.

So the girls are going to have to earn coverage of their sports by (1) the overall interest in their events and (2) by their achievements.

That is the same general yardstick used everywhere. The difficult part is explaining it to people. No one wants to admit that another sport or event is more popular than the one in which they are particularly interested.

Coaches and fans of minor sports become highly indignant when their favorite is referred to as a "minor sport."

But the hard fact remains that there is much more interest in some sports, some events, than in others.

Generally speaking, newspaper coverage or lack of it, neither makes a sport popular, keeps it popular or prevents it from becoming popular. As a sport increases, retains or loses popularity, newspapers increase, retain or diminish coverage.

Dionne gets hat trick in Kings win

BUFFALO (AP) — "Indescribable" is how Buffalo Sabres' Coach Floyd Smith described his team's play Sunday night. He said nothing of the Los Angles Kings and Marcel Dionne.

He added that if anything were said about Buffalo, chances were the words used would be uncomplimentary.

The Kings whipped the Sabres 5-1, in a National Hockey League game.

"The Sabres weren't sharp tonight," said Dionne, who led the Kings with three goals.

"Their defensemen weren't taking us out of plays and Gil Perreault and Rene Robert weren't sharp carrying the puck."

Dionne said his team plays a "very conservative game, taking only what the other teams gives us, and the Sabres gave us a few things."

Most of the "giving" was done in the Buffalo end, as the Kings sent three forwards in deep, brought their two defensemen inside the blue line, and forced Buffalo to give up the puck often.

After Dionne scored two goals, Tommy Williams deflected in Neil Komadoski's drive and Vic Venasky fired in a loose puck in front of Sabres goalie Don Edwards, making the score 4-0.

Danny Gare flipped in a high shot, spoiling Gary Simmons' shutout bid at 1:30 of the third period.

Dionne scored his third goal on a power play at 10:38 of the final period.

HALO STARS GET LOOSE Angels' outfielders Joe Rudie (L) and Bobby Bonds loosen up with leg stretching exercises Sunday at Holtville. The Halos open exhibition play a week from today against CSF.

Angels find another Mays

By The Associated Press

Say, hey, who is that in a California Angels' uniform?

Why, it is Willie Mays. Willie Mays Aikens, that is.

The Angels' rookie not only is a sound-alike for the former great outfielder who played for the San Francisco Giants and New York Mets, but is a lookalike—judging from the way he hit Sunday.

Aikens, a first baseman who won the 1976 Texas League home run championship at El Paso, hit a towering homer as the Angels held a full-scale workout at their Holtville, Calif. camp.

The blast highlighted a successful hitting drill, according to California Manager Norm Sherry.

"This is our fifth day in camp," said Sherry, "and I'm very pleased with the attitude and performance of all our players in both the fundamental and hitting drills. Our sole purpose in starting camp at a relatively early date is to get the team in the best physical condition possible for the start of the season.

"I guess you could say the only real difference between this camp and previous Angels' camps is perhaps a more relaxed atmosphere and a whole lot more hitting."

Outfielder Joe Rudi, a celebrated free-agent acquisition in the off-season, made his spring training camp debut as Sherry welcomed 46 players to the workout.

He might be 39 years old, but pitcher Mike Cueller is working like a rookie trying to make the team at his first major league spring baseball camp.

"He's something," Sherry said after a practice Sunday. "He runs three miles every day before workouts. And he has really been throwing well."

The left-hander was the third winniggest pitcher in Baltimore history, but was released last year because of a 4-13 record. Angels General Manager Harry Dalton, who had brought Cuellar to the Orioles from Houston in 1968, immediately signed the veteran pitcher.

Sherry wants his No. 5 pitching position to be filled by a left-hander. That pits Cuellar against the younger Sid Monge, who signed a two-year contract with the American League club Sunday.

Cuellar could also wind up a relief pitcher, using his best pitch, a screwball.

Monge had a 6-7 record last year, a 3.36 earned run average and was the club's 15th player to sign a multi-year contract.

Still unsigned are infielders Mario Guerrero and Dave Chalk and outfielders Danny Briggs and Bruce Bochte. Guerrero, who at .280 was the club's leading hitter last year, was missing until Sunday night, when he checked into camp. The only missing player is outfielder Gil Flores.

Shortstop Bobby Grich remained on the sidelines Sunday although his sore back improved. A team spokesman said he might be placed in traction. He was signed for $1.5 million as a free agent after finishing his option with Baltimore.

Other spring training camps also were in full swing.

The world champion Cincinnati Reds, joined by a disatisfied Pete Rose, held their first workouts over the weekend. Rose, who has threatened to play out the option year of his contract, joined 29 pitchers and catchers. The only absentee at Tampa, Fla. was relief pitcher Pedro Borbon, who was granted permission to arrive late due to a family illness.

Ohio builder to buy 49ers

BALTIMORE (AP)—The San Francisco 49ers are on the verge of being sold to an Ohio contractor who will install fired Baltimore Colts' official Joe Thomas as general manager of the National Football League team, it was reported today.

In a copyrighted story, the Baltimore News American said Edward J. DeBartolo, a builder from Youngstown, Ohio, has won approval of attorneys for the estates of the late Morabito brothers, founders of the team, and the 49ers' minority stockholders.

DeBartolo, a longtime friend of Thomas, was among four bidders for the franchise, the News American said.

It said the other groups included such persons as comedian Bob Hope; Wayne Valley, former part-owner of the Oakland Raiders; Sam Schulman, owner of the Seattle SuperSonics of the National Basketball Association, and Allie Sherman, former coach of the NFL's New York Giants.

According to the News American, DeBartolo will reportedly pay more than $13 million for 80 per cent control of the 49ers. The remaining 20 per cent will be retained by the club's minority stockholders, it said.

Booters draw tough foes

Six valley soccer squads, three in the 4A Division and three in the 3A, will continue CIF playoff action this week.

In games set for Tuesday afternoon, Claremont will host El Monte and Garey will entertain Edison in a pair of key 4A clashes. In 3A action Tuesday, Alta Loma will host Chaffey and Gladstone will be at Riverside Poly.

Those four games are slated to start at 3 p.m.

In a Wednesday 4A contest, Damien will travel to Torrance to play South Torrance under the lights in a 6:30 p.m. kickoff.

Claremont and Garey, who tied for the San Antonio League runnerup spot, both scored come-from-behind wins in Friday's opening round of playoff activity.

The Wolfpack and Vikings can expect more of the same on Tuesday, as both have drawn rugged opponents.

Garey, now 16-4-2 on the year, will be tangling with Edison, a team which won the Sunset League crown this season and will be carrying 17-4-2 ledger into the game. Edison was rated 10th in the final 4A poll, while the Vikings of coach Joe Sandhu were tabbed 15th.

While Garey was besting Santa Ana Valley Friday on penalty kicks, Edison actually lost to underdog Torrance on the playing field, 3-2.

However, after that game Edison protested to the CIF office Torrance's use of three players who allegedly had played in a non-CIF sanctioned Sunday league. The CIF office upheld the protest Saturday morning, forcing Torrance to forfeit the game and allowing Edison to advance.

"We really played well on both offense and defense vs. Santa Ana Valley," noted Viking coach Sandhu. "We are a young team, but a very good one. We think we have been underrated by most people all year long, so by beating Edison on Tuesday maybe we can prove we are a real threat to win the CIF title."

The Vikes have been paced by the outstanding play of midfielder Dioscoro Macias. Macias, remarkably, is only a freshman, but plays with rare poise and ability for a prep booter.

Goalie Jesus Lopez has also been steadily improving in the nets, while the likes of Santos Franco, Humberto Cortez, Jose Trejo and Abel Quevedo give Garey consistent scoring punch and ball control.

Claremont, now 15-3-3 on the season, may have finally found some much-needed scoring punch in last week's playoff tilt with Huntington Beach, as the 'Pack rallied from 1-0 and 2-1 deficits on the strength of two goals by Mark Spear.

The 'Pack will be hosting an El Monte team with a somewhat deceptive 15-6-2 ledger. El Monte has a history of playing top-notch defensive soccer, and won its opener vs. Agoura by a 1-0 score.

Damien, now 18-4-2, will face a toughie at South Torrance, and a large crowd is expected for that Wednesday night clash.

South, a long-time CIF power, had an "off" year with a 13-4-6 overall log and a third place finish in the rugged Bay League. However, South showed it is ready for playoff action by blanking a good Excelsior team 2-0 in Friday's 4A opener.

Chaffey, now 20-4-1, is a big favorite to down Alta Loma in that 3A all-valley matchup on Tuesday on the Braves' field. The Tigers, in fact, are regarded by many as perhaps the best all-around squad in the 3A Division.

However, a scrappy A.L. squad will give them a tussle. The Braves, now 11-4-5, rallied to defeat Bosco Tech Friday 3-2 on a late goal. Alta Loma does appear to have the scoring punch, but the Braves' defense is questionable and a veteran Tiger squad will put plenty of pressure on that unit.

Nicklaus 'steamrolls' to win

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — "I sort of steamrolled ahead," was the way Jack Nicklaus explained his 61st PGA tournament title, in the $250,000 Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic.

The game's 37-year-old master fell one shot behind playing partner Gary Player on the eighth hole Sunday, then outshot Player by seven shots on the next nine holes and finished five shots ahead of the South African to claim $50,000.

"I really don't think I'm a great frontrunner," said Nicklaus, who entered the day a shot ahead of Gil Morgan and two up on Player.

"Once I got one shot behind (with consecutive bogeys on Nos. 7 and 8), I just made up my mind and played more aggressive. I played better being behind at that point," said Nicklaus, who had a closing two-under 70.

Where Nicklaus really won the tournament was on the 532yard 15th hole. He got an eagle three with a 30-foot putt to move four shots ahead and said, "I figured I could just walk home from there.

"I played the hole with two eagles, a birdie and one lousy par," said Nicklaus, who finished at 13-under 275 for 72 holes at Inverrary Golf and Country Club.

The five strokes he picked up on 15 was the margin of victory over Player, who ended at eight-under 280 to claim $28,500.

Nicklaus credits rotund comedian Gleason with his success on 15—he had two eagles and two birdies on the hole last year when he won the Tournament Players Championship here by three strokes.

He said Gleason reminded him before the TCP that his downfall in four previous events had been failure to score well on 15. Nicklaus said he had approached the hole with added determination ever since.

Nicklaus, now tied with Ben Hogan for second on the alltime victory list behind Sam Snead's 84 triumphs, will skip this week's Florida Citrus Open at Orlando but play the next three tournaments to prepare for the April 7-10 Masters.

He is the first established veteran to win this year. Previous winners on the West Coast were Bruce Lietske twice, Tom Watson twice, Jerry Pate and Tom Purtzer.

"It seems to be a solid pattern every year," said Nicklaus, who played in only two previous tournaments and made $4,600. "The young guys come out in January ready to play."

He said the older players don't gear their games up as quick and added, especially of the young players who don't win and face weekly qualifying sessions, "After seven, eight or nine events, they get stale and tired of golf, they sort of eliminated themselves.

"By mid-March you don't hear from them again," he said, objecting to the qualifying system. "It gives them no opportunity to get a rest. They've got to get tired. It's our own system that causes it."

Gil Morgan, Jim Simons and Fuzzy Zoeller each earned $13,250 for third place. Morgan, a shot behind Nicklaus entering the round, had a four-over-76 to finish at six-under 282, while Simons closed with a 70 and Zoeller at 73.

Hubert Green was another shot back to earn $9,000.

Lucie Manet to miss 'Cap

ARCADIA, Calif.(AP)— Santa Anita's biggest race of the year comes up Sunday and the champion gal will leave this $250,000 Big 'Cap to the fellows.

King Pellinore and Ancient Title head the list for the quarter million dollar race and they won't have to contend with Lucie Manet, the little speedster from Argentina.

"She needs a rest," declared owner John Valpredo of Bakersfield, Calif., who admitted he almost didn't enter his import from South America in the $100,000 Santa Margarita which she promptly won, just two weeks after taking the $100,000 La Canada Stakes.

"I regard her as a baby, she was born late in the year and I hesitated to run her against the older mares," Valpredo said. "But it looked like the track might be a little dead and the others might not like it."

So at 10 a.m. the morning of the race, the owner decided Lucie would run after all.

He already had Star Ball running, but his decision on Lucie proved to be right as the other half of the entry beat only one of the other eight horses in the rich race.

Lucie Manet and the top weighted Bastonera II turned the finish into an all-Argentine affair with Lucie winning the 1⅛-mile championship for older fillies and mares in 1:48 2-5, not far off the race record of 1:47 4-5 by Turkish Trousers in 1972. And, like Valpredo said, the track was a little dead as a result of rains during the week although rated officially as fast.

Lucie Manet earned $60,000 for her owner and she already had earned him back his purchase price. She returned her backers in the crowd of 39,267 with $8.60, $4 and $3.20. Bastonera II returned $3.60 and $3.20 and the 23-1 longshot Hope of Glory paid $6.20 to show.

Most of the race had Pacific Princess and Lucie battling far ahead of their rivals. But Pacific Princess faded in the stretch and Lucie went on to win.

"This filly proved how good she is when four different riders can win with her," commented Darrel McHargue who had the ride this

Sports briefs

NEW YORK — Sixteen-year-old Steve Cauthen rode Turn and Count, $6.20, to victory in the $82,650 Grey Lag Handicap at Aqueduct. The victory was his third of the day and gave him the record for triumphs in a single meeting with 124 in 47 racing days.

DETROIT — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova of Dallas defeated second-seeded Sue Barker of England 6-4, 6-4 for the singles title, then teamed with Betty Stove of The Netherlands in taking the doubles title in the women's professional tennis tour stop at Cobo Arena.

ALKMAAR, The Netherlands — Eighteen-year-old Eric Heiden of Madison, Wis. won his third world speed skating title in three weeks, capturing the World Sprint championships with 157.455 points, finishing just head of Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis. Sylvia Burka of Canada took the women's title.

FURANO, Japan — Austria swept all four World Cup races over the weekend, as Regina Sackl won the women's slalom, Monika Kaserer took the women's giant slalom, Hans Hinterseer captured the men's giant slalom and Klaus Heidegger was victorious in the men's slalom.

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Sophomore Joe Senser of West Chester State broke an NCAA basketball record held by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and two other players, finishing the season Saturday with a 69.9 per cent average on his shots from the floor.

BATON ROUGE, La. — Harvey Glance won the 60-yard dash and Willie Smith took the 440, leading Auburn to the Southeastern Conference indoor track and field title.

MILWAUKEE — Eddie Ressler beat Dave Soutar 224-222 in the championship match and won a $100,000 professional bowling tournament.

LILLEHAMMER, Norway — Alexander Tikhonov of the Soviet Union led a Russian sweep of all the medals in the world biathlon championships.

Richmond 400 to Yarborough

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Is bad luck the only thing that can beat Cale Yarborough?

His opposition must be beginning to wonder.

Bad luck in the season opener is the only thing between Yarborough and a perfect season in Grand National stock car racing.

The defending national champion spun out on debris left on the track by another car and finished second at Riverside, Calif.

But then he won a 125-mile qualifying race for the Daytona 500, and the prestigious 500 itself, with a victory in the International Race of Champions finale squeezed in between.

And Sunday he added the rain-shortened, Richmond 400 to his list of triumphs—four victories in 1½ weeks.

"Not a bad season, so far," Yarborough conceded.

Actually he already has had a better season than all but one or two of his fellow competitors are likely to have the rest of the year, and 27 races remain on the Grand National calendar.

"We lost the one, but won all the rest of 'em. Things are looking good. We might make a little money this year," noted Yarborough, whose 1977 winnings already exceed $125,000.

About Sunday's race, Yarborough said it was not that close, even though Darrell Waltrip was only a car-length behind when a thunderstorm hit the .542-mile Fairgrounds Speedway.

"It was a cakewalk," said Yarborough, who already has a bulging lead in Winston Cup point standings. "I wasn't worried about Darrell. I knew I could beat him. I could have stretched it out if I wanted. But I saw the rain coming and didn't take any chances."

An eight-car pileup that occured when rain came once earlier in the race had everyone a little more safety conscious.

Buddy Baker, who was running in the top five, spun with Junior Miller and both cars came to rest blocking the track. A line of cars behind them piled in. Only Dick Brooks, another top five driver, was damaged too seriously to continue.

Others involved were pole position starter Neil Bonnett, Richard Petty, Skip Manning, Buddy Arrington and Elmo Langley.

The crash did not seriously alter the outcome, however. Bonnett and Benny Parsons, who finished a distant third, had the early lead, but Yarborough took command on the 32nd lap, and was ahead most of the rest of the distance, except after pit stops.

Other leaders were Richard Childress, Bobby Allison and David Marcis.

Yarborough passed Marcis on the 163rd lap and held the lead the remainder of the race, although Waltrip, who spun and dropped far back early, was on his rear bumper most of the way.

The race was stopped after 244 of the 400 scheduled laps.

Tar Heels pull off DP

By the Associated Press

The North Carolina Tar Heels pulled off a great double play over the weekend.

They won the Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season title with a little help from North Carolina State, then beat Louisville with a lot of help from Phil Ford.

"It looked like we were worn out," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith after Sunday's nationally televised 96-89 victory over Louisville.

The Tar Heels had every right to be tired. They had beaten Duke 84-71 Saturday, then sweated through an emotionally draining day before finding out how Wake Forest would do that night.

The Deacons were upset by North Carolina State 91-85, thus giving the ACC championship to North Carolina.

Then, North Carolina defeated the nation's 10th-ranked club.

North Carolina led Louisville by as many as 22 points in the second half of the game at Charlotte, N.C., and, led by Ford, held off a late Cardinals rally.

The brilliant guard scored 26 points and orchestrated the sensitive "Four Corner" offense for the ninth-ranked Tar Heels.

"It's hard to be ahead by 20 against such a good team like Louisville," Smith said. "Louisville is not going to fall over and play dead when they're down by 20."

Elsewhere in the Top 10 Saturday, No. 1 San Francisco squeezed past Portland University 95-92; No. 2 Kentucky defeated Alabama 85-70; No. 3 Michigan edged Michigan State 69-65 in overtime; No. 5 UCLA hammered California 91-69 and Georgia shocked No. 7 Tennessee 83-76.

In other games, No. 12 Providence stopped St. John's 69-66; No. 13 Minnesota nipped Illinois 72-70; No. 14 Cincinnati outscored Jacksonville 78-61; No. 15 Syracuse turned back Rutgers 82-72; No. 16 Detroit walloped Cincinnati-Xavier 91-66; No. 17 Oregon edged Washington 61-60; No. 18 Marquette beat Virginia Tech 75-70; No. 19 Clemson embarassed Roanoke 120-56, and New Mexico upset No. 20 Utah 81-77.

North Carolina held a 57-38 halftime lead and expanded that to 70-48 early in the second half before Louisville came back on the shooting of Wesley Cox and Rick Wilson, who led all scorers with 30 points.

But Ford scored crucial points, and freshman star Mike O'Koren, who also had 26, thwarted the Louisville comeback before a sellout crowd of 11,666 at the Charlotte Coliseum.

Saturday's victory and the first-place finish earned the Tar Heels a bye in the first round of the ACC playoffs, starting Thursday. North Carolina will play Friday night in the semifinals against the winner of the Maryland-North Carolina State game. Other first-round matchups include Wake Forest vs. Virginia and Clemson vs. Duke.

Bill Cartwright scored 33 points and led San Francisco on a 14-2 tear late in the game, helping the undefeated Dons beat Portland for their 29th straight victory this season. The big center had three baskets in the middle of the streak as the Dons rallied from an 11-point deficit against the underdog Pilots.

"We lost our identity on defense," said Portland Coach Jack Avina of the San Francisco comeback.

San Francisco Coach Bob Gaillard, unhappy with his team's performance, attributed its play to "mental relaxation" following Friday night's 112-77 rout of Seattle.

James Lee triggered a Kentucky rally late in the second half that sent the Wildcats past Alabama and into sole possession of first place in the Southeastern Conference. This was accomplished by Tennessee's loss to Georgia.

Rickey Green scored 20 points, including a crucial basket in overtime, helping Michigan beat Michigan State.

"We showed we could win their kind of game," Michigan Coach Johnny Orr said of Michigan State's deliberate offense. "It takes a lot of discipline. When they slowed it down in the first half it got our timing off, which was what (Michigan State Coach (Jud) Heathcote wanted. But we readjusted."

Marques Johnson scored 37 points in his last home game in Pauley Pavilion, leading UCLA over California. UCLA's victory clinched a tie for the Pac-8 title. Walter Daniels and Curtis Jackson combined on a 10-point rally in the final two minutes as Georgia, the last-place team in the SEC, upset Tennessee.

Gottfried tops Vilas in finals

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Brian Gottfried held his serve only once in the first set, but came back to win the $225,000 Tennis Games by beating Guillermo Vilas 2-6, 6-1, 6-3.

The 25-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., resident took home first-prize money of $35,200 on Sunday while the Argentinan won $17,600 for second.

"I couldn't get my first serve in and Vilas slapped back my second serve to win the points," Gottfried said after the victory.

"I tried to stay back and play a baseline game with him, but he killed me. The only way I beat him was to serve and volley and make good approach shots. I did this in the second and third set. He couldn't get his strong ground game together, and that made the difference."

Gottfried broke Vilas' second set service three times and held his serve three more times to turn the match around. Vilas won only one game in the second set, when Gottfried netted the ball twice on low volleys.

At the end of the second set, a frustrated Vilas did not try for a low volley. Afterwards, he angrily stomped to the sidelines.

In the doubles, Drew McMillan and Bob Hewitt of South Africa defeated Americans Marty Riessen and Roscoe Tanner, 7-6 7-5, 7-6 7-5.

The tournament was sponsored by American Airlines.

Bruins take tennis match

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Using the World Team Tennis mixed format for the first time, the University of California at Los Angeles defeated the University of Southern California 29-25 Sunday.

Team points were awarded for games won in men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles and mixed doubles. One-set matches were played.

Paula Smith of UCLA defeated Barbara Hallquist of USC (7-5) in women's singles. The men's singles winner was UCLA's Ferdi Tagan, who beat Bruce Manson by the same score.

USC won the women's doubles, with Diane Desfor and Gretchen Galt beating Becky Bill and Susan Zaro 6-2. But UCLA was victorious in men's doubles, as Tony Graham and Jon Paley topped Chris Lewis and Andy Lucchesi 7-6.

The UCLA mixed doubles team of Paula Smith and Van Winitsky won 6-3 over USC's Sheil McInerney and Mike Newberry.

Drought impact—rain spares valley farmers

Independence from northern water to ease local problems

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Valley farmers have been hoping for rain this year, and for a change they have received it.

Because of the rain and no dependence on Northern California water, local farmers so far have escaped any serious problems from the much publicized drought.

"Most of our water is pumped from underground," said Roger Birdsall, agriculture commissioner for San Bernardino County. "We just haven't had the drought problems they've had in Northern California."

Some effects of the drought — none serious — have been felt in the valley, noted Birdsall. Before last week's rain, farmers did some "extra irrigation," which is expensive, he said.

The effect of dry conditions elsewhere has driven up the price of feed for cows from $65 to $85 and $90 a ton, Birdsall explained. "The grain crop wasn't very big last year, and it drove the feed prices up."

Chino area dairymen have been complaining over higher feed prices. "Hay has been sold for $92 a ton already," said Case Van Der Eyk. "The guy who buys it is crazier than the one who sells it — because if he didn't buy, the price would come down."

Citrus growers are optimistic about this year's crop, despite the need to irrigate more often than usual. "The growers were really crying before the recent rain," said a spokesman for La Verne Co-Op in Upland, a growers' association. "But now we've had enough rain so we can skip a few irrigations."

The grower pointed out that rain last fall and early this year has insured a decent citrus crop for this season. La Verne Co-Op is a group of lemon growers in the West End.

"This rain will stall irrigations," said Louis Hernandez, another grower. "I think we are all right so far. But we hope not to have a dry summer."

Many farmers in the valley lost their crops last year because of severe drought conditions in Southern California. But this year, with the rains coming frequently, it's a different story.

"I lost my crop last year," said Dexter Stevens, a Chino area grain grower. "But this year, I'm in better shape — the rains keep coming at the right time. Even if the rains stopped now, I'd have 50 per cent of my normal crop."

Stevens depends solely on the weather for his crop. He has acreage at Phillips Ranch in Pomona and in the Chino Hills.

Mike Dotta, who plants alfalfa, corn, and oats in the Chino Hills, is not as pleased this year as Stevens. "We've had to irrigate to make our crop, and everytime we do, we use up our underground resources. And irrigating is very expensive. This recent rain helps but we're not out of the woods yet."

Dotta admits he is more optimistic this year as compared to 1976, however. He only managed half his normal crop during last season's drought.

Most area farmers have heard of water rationing moves, but so far since they are voluntary, farmers are not concerned over it.

And while the drought threatens to cripple farmers in the San Joaquin Valley, underground water resources are good here and local farmers voice optimism.

Robert Herber, first patient to participate in the Cardiac Rehabilitation Center at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, begins exercises under the guidance of Cathy O'Neil, physical therapist. Now discharged after a heart attack, Herber will continue in the outpatient program.

Petition signatures presented

Porno protest to crowd Ontario council chamber

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

Pornography protesters are expected to crowd the Ontario City Council Chambers Tuesday night.

Concerned Citizens Against Pornography have submitted a petition bearing 176 signatures, all Ontario residents, objecting to the location of an adult book store and movie house at 1742 S. Euclid Ave.

The pornography shop and movie house is located between Southland Market and the Alpha Beta Shopping Center in south Ontario and is in close proximity to schools and routes traveled by young children to get to school.

Schools located in the general vicinity of the protested business include Sultana, Bon View, Cypress, Euclid and Ontario Christian elementary schools, De Anza Junior High School and Ontario High School.

Fritz Hahn of 2031 S. San Antonio Ave., in a letter to the City Council, said "with the southern portion of Ontario containing numerous amounts of schools, children will be subjected and faced with the filth and corruption which follows such organizations (as adult book stores and movie houses). If people are to be subjected to such standards, let it be standards which carry a meaningful and educational path.

"A mind is a terrible thing to waste, so let's curtail those means which are detrimental to us all."

Pornography "makes no pretense to be a contribution to literature and which claims no scientific or artistic merit," Hahn said.

In other matters, the City Council will consider a first reading legalizing bingo within the city limits and setting a public hearing for the issue on March 15. It will also consider zone changes on properties located south of the Pomona Freeway on the west side of Cucamonga Avenue and south of the Pomona Freeway between Grove and Parco avenues.

Tavern fire damage set

A fire of undetermined origin heavily damaged a City of Industry tavern Sunday morning.

The blaze, inside the Chaparral Lounge at 14300 E. Valley Blvd., was discovered by a motorist who noticed smoke while passing the place shortly after 8 o'clock. The first county fire department crew to arrive reported finding the building's interior engulfed in flames. It took about 15 minutes to put out the blaze.

Fire department authorities estimated the damage at $10,000 to the lounge's interior and $8,000 to the building itself.

A routine investigation was ordered in an attempt to determine the cause of the fire.

Six-period day restored

Restoration of the six-period day for the high schools and the possible appointment of an affirmative action administrator to watch over district hiring practices will highlight Tuesday's meeting of the Pomona school board.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the board room of the Edcuation Center, 800 S. Garey Ave., Pomona.

District figures show restoring the sixth period to the school day would cost approximately $586,110 and require an additional eight to 10 teachers. The sixth period would be added beginning in September.

The board may take action on the affirmative action administrator if the interviewing is completed by Tuesday.

The board is also expected to take formal action on the hiring of off-duty police officers to patrol the perimeters of the district's three high schools and Marshall Junior High School.

Council hopeful 'defines' key issue

GERTHA SPEIGINER

Gertha Speiginer, candidate for Pomona City Council from the 4th District, has announced that "accountability" will be the key issue in her campaign.

"Accountability has been lacking on the Pomona City Council. It must be established if Pomona is to progress and prosper. The council must represent the total community and become dedicated to the idea of providing the best possible decisions that benefit many, not just a few vested interests in the city," she said.

A resident of the city for almost 30 years, Mrs. Speiginer, 59, is now in her fourth term as president of the Pomona Valley Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

She has been a participant in various Pomona school district affairs, including membership on committees dealing with emergency aid and affirmative action programs. She has also served on the Los Angeles County Community Health Planning Council.

"My husband, Louis, and I have raised eight daughters in this community. We now have 20 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren who either live here or visit frequently. Building accountability and a better city will help not only these children, but all children and adults living in Pomona," she said.

"It's time for the buck to stop in the City Council Chambers, not at the administration offices, the police department or some sundry, secret meeting of political and economic powers."

Mrs. Speiginer's residence is at 2243 Larchmont St.

The special election for the 4th Councilmanic District will be held April 19. There are two other candidates seeking to fill the remaining two years of Councilman Charles Bader's term. Bader resigned the seat to run for mayor in the March 8 election.

At rehabilitation center

Heart victims find aid in local 'total' health plan

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

A new Cardiac Rehabilitation Center at Pomona Valley Community Hospital offers a total physical, emotional and educational program for cardiac patients and their families.

The goal of the multidisciplinary program is to return patients with heart disease to a normal life style and to adapt their behavioral patterns to prevent reoccurrence of their illness.

A team of specially trained personnel, led by Dr. Robert Chaney, starts the rehabilitation program as soon as the patient is stabilized in the hospital and continues it for at least a year after the patient is released from the hospital.

The inpatient program started in December and the outpatient program is just now getting underway.

Members of the team include a cardiologist, registered nurse, respiratory therapist, cardiac exercise technician, dietitian and physical therapist, each providing specialized programing and, at the same time, cooperating to establish a totally integrated pattern of supervision and education.

"We've spent well over a year planning the program in detail, training the team members and acquiring the equipment we needed to begin the coordinated program," said Dr. Chaney.

"With the consent of the patient and the attending physician, we start the rehabilitation program as soon as possible," said the physician. "This reduces the deterioration which occurs anytime a patient is confined to bed."

Dr. Chaney pointed out that the heart disease patient not only has a serious physical illness, but many psychological changes have occurred.

"They worry about relationships with their employment, spouses and family, and what the future holds for them."

As soon as possible, the patient begins a program of structured exercises under the watchful eye of a physical therapist who has been trained for this program.

Charles Magistro, head of the physical therapy department, said these therapists attended classes at USC on their own time to train for this specialized team.

Even while still confined to the coronary care unit, patients begin their first exercises by moving their arms and legs.

As their conditions permit, the patients are then taken to a cardiac rehabilitation exercise room in the hospital where they extend their exercise programs on bicycles, walking ramps and other equipment, being carefully monitored on sophisticated machines which observe and record heart action, blood pressure and other vital signs.

But exercise is only a part of the six-phase program for the patient and the family. Much of the rehabilitation stresses changing behavioral patterns, diets, reducing stress and other adaptations for a healthier, productive life.

The dietitian discusses nutrition and weight control and works out individual menus.

A series of tapes are played for the patients and their families to familiarize them with heart disease and help them overcome many of the misconceptions hovering over the future life of a person who has been stricken.

"Because of the team approach and a lot of volunteer work, this cardiac rehabilitation program is included in normal hospital costs, with the exception of some of the PT," said Dr. Chaney.

The team members stressed that about 20 per cent of the patients were unable to participate in the new program for reasons of severe physical disability or being mentally unable to cope.

"We are finding great enthusiasm on the part of both the patients and their doctors and are greatly encouraged so far," added Dr. Chaney.

The outpatient program is designed to start eight weeks after the patients have been discharged from the hospital.

Team members explained that this lag gave the patients time to build up their strength and adjust to family life. Many of these patients are monitored at home or in the community through new electronic devices.

The outpatient program is not limited to patients who are admitted to PVCH, but is available to anyone who is referred by a physician, Dr. Chaney said.

The Cardiac Rehabilitation Center concept has already met with great success in the few other Southland hospitals were it has been initiated.

"When the heart patient wants to get well, we have the team program to help him understand his goals and achieve them. We know it can work," said Dr. Chaney."

Candidates reception planned by chamber

Pomona Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a "Meet the Candidates" reception Thursday for candidates in the March 8 Pomona municipal election.

The free public reception will begin at 4:30 p.m. at Orlando's Restaurant.

Each candidate for mayor and council will give a short talk and a question and answer period will follow.

Candidates for mayor are Ray Lepire, incumbent, Henry Cole, Clay Bryant, Richard Brownell, Charles Bader, and William Kaminski.

Running for council in the 2nd District are Adrian Wright, incumbent, Irving Clark, William Koch, and Manuel R. Ramirez.

Candidates for the 3rd District are Benjamin Ochoa, incumbent, John W. Ridley, and Walter A. Clark.

On March 8 any candidate receiving 50 per cent of the vote in his race will be elected. If no candidate receives 50 per cent of the vote, the two candidates receiving the most votes will have a run-off on April 19.

Free trade has its price

What baseball fans would call a real rhubarb has erupted over the decision by the Pittsburgh Pirates to buy 120 uniforms from a Japanese manufacturer. The Japanese firm won the contract in competition with five U.S. companies because it offered the lowest price.

It was a foul ball in the judgment of angered labor people, who are studying possible actions against the Pirates and any other team that follows the Pirates' lead. A walkout of unionized ballpark workers has been darkly threatened.

"We can't force people to buy union-made materials, but certainly do think baseball, the American game, should be buying in America," complains Julie Isaacson, president of the International Toymakers' Union.

The baseball brouhaha is only the latest development in a problem that has long concerned other U.S. industries. Specialty steel, electronics and textile workers, for example, face similar challenges from cheaper foreign imports. One of the most serious situations is in the shoe industry.

In 1967, there were 675 U.S. firms producing footwear in some 1,000 plants. Today the number is 350 firms operating about 750 plants. Employment has fallen from 233,000 to only 163,000 — a loss of 70,000 jobs.

Over approximately the same period the foreign share of the U.S. shoe market has more than doubled, from 21.5 per cent in 1968 to 45.7 per cent in 1976.

According to Mark Richardson, president of the American Footwear Industries Association, unemployment in the shoe industry, which is running at about 15 per cent, will rise even more unless President Carter approves a proposal of the U.S. International Trade Commission.

The ITC recommends that the United States permit 270 million pairs of cheap foreign shoes, chiefly from South Korea, Taiwan and Brazil, to enter the country at the present 10 per cent duty. Above this number, the duty on this type of shoe would jump to 30 per cent.

The ITC report has presented the Carter administration with a dilemma. If the President goes along with the recommendation, he could save at least 10,000 jobs in more than 30 states, say industry spokesmen. But if he approves stiff tariffs and quotas on the ever-rising flood of cheap foreign shoes, there is a chance he might slow down world economic recovery and invite retaliation against U.S. products.

On the one hand, people are losing their jobs, and whittling down the unemployment rate is a major goal of the President. But on the other hand, Americans would be forced to pay more for their footwear, and the cost of living is another of his concerns.

Free trade is a lovely ideal. But when it comes to putting it into practice, the shoe pinches.

Think on these things

Some day we are all going to do the things we planned to do some day. We're going to visit each other, lose weight permanently, have time to read, stop smoking too much or worrying too much. Some day everything will be in order and suddenly there will be hours on end to spend however we want to spend them.

Some day we may wake up and discover that some day has arrived many times. If we are waiting on a perfect day in which to begin a new life, we wait in vain. This very moment is some day and we are the only ones who can turn the key and start things moving. It is an inner decision and an inner move that changes things. All that we do outside ourselves is for nothing if we haven't changed what the innerself believes.

Thoughts

We who are strong ought to bear with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves; let each of us please his neighbor for his good, to edify him. — Romans 15:1,2.

"Every great man is always being helped by everybody; for his gift is to get good out of all things and all persons." — John Ruskin, English essayist.

So Barnabas went to Tarsus to look for Saul; and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. For a whole year they met with the church, and taught a large company of people; and in Antioch the disciples were for the first time called Christians. — Acts 11:25,26.

"I have now disposed of all my property to my family. There is one thing more I wish I could give them, and that is the Christian religion. If they had that, and I had not given them one shilling, they would have been rich, and if they had not that, and I had given them all the world, they would be poor." — Patrick Henry, American orator.

An ex-military wife replies

Dear Editor:

After reading George Darling's letter on military pensions published in the Feb. 21 edition of the Progress Bulletin, I felt I could not sit by and have the public think that the military pension is a great get-rich-quick opportunity.

I am an ex-military wife. My husband served seven years in the Marine Corps and never regretted a day. It was a learning experience for both of us. You'd think with that much time in we'd stick with it, right? The reason is that we (people who have gotten out after doing six, 10 or 15 years) are tired of being the man holding the bag.

My husband entered the service in 1970. His take home pay was $208 a month. We didn't eat too well, but never would apply for welfare or food stamps. In 1971, six weeks before my first baby was due, my husband was sent to Vietnam. My son met his dad for the first time when he was 10 months old. Not a very good way to start a family.

I was half lucky. My husband came home, my brother didn't. How many mothers and wives still have broken hearts? I know that if my husband had stayed with Uncle Sam for 20 years or longer he would have had to go overseas another two or three times. Those are years out of my children's lives, never to be recaptured. Many civilians believe that all a serviceman's medical bills are paid for by the military. The government no longer provides dental care to dependents.

The housing we get is great, I'm told. Tell it to the centipedes and cockroaches we had to fight off while living three years in Hawaii. My husband took a part-time job after duty hours in order for us to survive financially.

The commissaries and post exchanges are no longer what they used to be. Service families do better shopping the sales at civilian stores. My husband was awakened from a sound sleep many nights to go back to work after a full day. No overtime, no paid holidays.

Now we are residents of Chino. My husband is earning twice as much as Uncle Sam paid him for doing the same job. He comes home every night. I never have to worry about moving. He gets overtime and vacations, free dental and excellent medical and life insurance plans. We now can afford a house of our own, make friends, begin to make roots. If military service is such a good deal, why aren't thousands flocking to get in? Indeed, military pay has gone up but not enough for my husband and others to stay in uniform. I do hope the next time the United States decides to become involved in a foreign war that it will be able to get someone to go. If you do away with the pension benefits for the 20-year man, and the government has already cut out educational benefits for the newcomers, how long do you think it will be before an all volunteer service is a thing of the past?

Carter vow to restore morality

WASHINGTON — When Jimmy Carter was running for president, he lamented that America had been disgraced by government policies unworthy of her people. He would change these policies, he promised; and he would never do anything that would shame us.

He hadn't been in the White House long before he began taking several small steps to place morality above convenience, above hypocrisy. He condemned the abuse of human rights around the world from Rhodesia to South Korea.

He protested repeatedly the suppression of basic freedoms in the Soviet Union — the unmentionable corpse in the closet during the Nixon-Kissinger-Ford era. And lest these protests be thought empty formalities, he dramatized them by going out of his way to show respect for the great Russian spokesmen for freedom and decency. A personal letter was sent to Andrei Sakharov; the word went out that Alexsandr Solzhenitsyn and Vladimir Bukovsky will be welcome at Jimmy Carter's White House.

From these simple acts, a ripple of hope has started to spread the world over among oppressed people who keep alive a yearning for freedom. It is a hope that springs not from any expectation that we will liberate them, but from the knowledge that we are aware they exist, that we honor their struggle and that the great human tide is with them.

Consistent with this, President Carter seems determined to keep the FBI within the law and to keep the CIA away from covert activities. Murder, burglary, bribery, extortion, election rigging — all are out. Any other covert activity will require a written authorization with his signature on it where it can be read by history and the special prosecutor.

Because of these beginnings of a policy that reconciles our immediate interests with our larger moral heritage, sophisticates and pragmatists of various persuasions have begun to lampoon Carter as a Boy Scout and a threat to international harmony (or at least to our automobile bumpers made of Rhodesian chrome).

In my own opinion, Carter is not at all naive. His policy not only is right, but it is also the best practical course. We have followed the pragmatists too far, too long.

It is bad enough that we stood mute before foreign despotism; it is intolerable that from refusing to see evil in front of our noses, we went on to practice it ourselves. We have made no permanent gains, and we have lost what was once our greatest strength. Our reputation for decency, once the beacon of the world, is now everywhere in tatters, and we are looked at as little better than the communists.

And an inevitable by-product haunts us. One by one, the schemes we designed for others, in competition with the Soviet KGB, have been turned against our own people and institutions.

This insidious, corrosive process can be seen in embryo in the testimony given by the incomparable E. Howard Hunt as a prosecution witness in the trial of the White House plumbers for breaking into the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The president's burglars hoped to steal discrediting information about Ellsberg which the White House could, in turn, leak to the press.

Hunt was asked what type of work he did during his long career with the Central Intelligence Agency. "Oh," he replied with bored nonchalance, "subversion of prominent figures abroad, the overthrow of governments — that sort of thing." Judging from his testimony, it seemed to Hunt a logical progression to go from subverting foreign leaders to discrediting by illegal means an American public figure.

Then he recruited under false pretenses a group of Cuban-Americans who followed him, out of trust, into the burglary of they knew not what; and then, in the final scene, he turned state's evidence and testified against his recruits in order to avoid having additional time added to his Watergate sentence.

Students wiser than ever

Interesting contradiction:

Academically, many of our schoolagers are not learning the essentials.

Some parents in New York are suing schools for "educational malpractice" because their children are given a high school diploma though they can't adequately read, write or spell. And they can't add 20 and 25.

At the same time, however, we learn from the new National Opinion Survey that the scholars are wiser than ever.

In their own enlightened self-interest they are renewing their faith in traditional values.

The turnaround was in the 1960s — when they did what they liked, and then did not like what they did.

In preparing the seventh annual "Who's Who Among American High School Students" it was necessary to survey 23,800 juniors and seniors.

They've changed.

From the "do-your-own-thing," "let-it-all-hang-out" philosophy of the Sixties, these high schoolers have become morally conservative.

Understand, the interviewees in this instance were the scholars, the "outstanding students."

This survey is conducted annually by Educational Communications, Inc. of Northbrook, Ill., among students recommended by high school principals or guidance counselors. They have to be "B" or better students. They are already "outstanding" in academics, athletics, community service.

It can be assumed that these will become our nation's leaders, so their opinions are especially significant.

The majority of these 17- and 18-year-olds do not believe in premarital sex, do not believe in smoking pot, do not believe in drinking liquor.

Surprised?

Eight of 10 of these "top teens" favor traditional marriage.

Seventy-four percent have never had sexual intercourse.

Fifty-seven percent intend to abstain from sex until marriage.

Eighty-nine percent have never used drugs.

(Contrast this latter figure with the 1972 finding that 28 percent had tried hard drugs.)

Eighty percent have not smoked cigarettes.

And hear this: 58 percent feel that the job of full-time homemaker can be totally fulfilling for a woman.

Eight of 10 consider themselves "members of an organized religion"; 64 percent regularly attend services.

Maybe we've been worried about the wrong things.

Because the school-agers who do misuse drugs and sex are likely to make the most titillating news, we have overlooked the increasingly responsible attitude and disciplined behavior of the "achievers."

And this is interesting: 68 percent would be willing to attend a school where more than half of the students were of a different race — but 75 percent reject the idea of busing to achieve that objective.

They are using their heads. Seventy-three percent say that corporate power is too great. At the same time, 66 percent say unions hold too much political power.

In the bullpen warming up is a generation of maturing leaders who are going to be wiser than ours were.

Public pays for the fun

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Forget all those helpful magazine stories about how to put together a successful but inexpensive home party to entertain your friends and business associates. The Defense Department can show you how to be a fabulous host at no personal expense.

The Pentagon's secret: Invite leading members of Congress and Defense officials to a cocktail or dinner party at your Georgetown home, then bill the nation's taxpayers for the cost of food and drinks.

John M. Maury, the department's chief liaison officer with the House and Senate from April 1974 through March 1976, thinks there's nothing wrong with that practice as long as it relates to government business.

Previously secret documents we have obtained show Maury threw a number of taxpayer-financed parties at his house during his two years in office. In March 1975, he offered cocktails and a buffet to approximately 40 VIPs in order to "promote working relations between officials of the Department of Defense and members of Congress and their staffs."

The food cost $47, the "potables" $38 and the service $70, all of it paid by the Treasury. The amount isn't much (the total bill was just under $155) but that was only one of countless instances in which the Defense Department has used hundreds of thousands of dollars in public funds to lavish special attention on members of Congress.

In fact, less than a week after that party, Maury hosted an "official dinner" at his home. The guests of honor were a visiting Greek citizen and two of the members of the House most interested in Greek affairs, Reps. John Brademas, D-Ind., and Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md.

The congressmen, their wives and eight others at the select party consumed $72 worth of food and $36 in "potables." Another $75 for service brought the total bill to $183 — all of it paid by the federal treasury.

When Maury was about to retire one year later, he wanted to introduce his successor to fellow Pentagon officials and key legislators. So he put together a "reception" at his house and invited Donald H. Rumsfeld, then Defense secretary, and a bevy of lesser Defense chiefs.

Most brought their wives, as did Sens. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., and Harry F. Byrd Jr., Independent-Va., as well as Reps. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., and J. Kenneth Robinson, R-Va. The bill was $285, paid by the government treasury.

After the Scripps-Howard Newspapers last summer ran an extensive series of stories citing other examples of how the Pentagon wines, dines and pampers legislaters with "black bag funds," Defense officials promised to tighten their regulations to prohibit misuse of public funds.

But as late as this month, Army Col. Stephen Harrick, an aide to the current Assistant Secretary of Defense for Legislative Affairs, said government-paid parties such as those thrown at Maury's house are "probably routine."

No other department or agency of the federal government expends as much time, money or manpower as does the Pentagon in its continuous campaign to subtly influence the legislators who must vote on the department's programs and budget requests.

Most members of the President's cabinet reportedly have small "slush funds," for low-key entertaining, built into their budgets. But those combined totals do not even approach the Defense Department's spending.

The size of the Pentagon program was defended by Harrick on the grounds that his department "has a budget that's the second largest in the federal government."

By that standard, officials of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, whose budget is the biggest, ought to be Washington's premiere hosts and hostesses — but they pay their own bills when entertaining at home.

Just in jest

Bingo games for the purpose of raising money for religious and charitable purposes are running into a lot of opposition in Montclair. Such fund raising methods take away the benefits of sacrificial giving, according to the Bingo game opponents — benefits like giving until it hurts instead of giving in the hope of maybe hitting a big numbers payoff. Self-involvement without thought of personal gain is what charity is all about, the opposition claims.

And while the arguments rage, Montclair's religious organizations and charitable institutions are getting neither sacrificial, self-involvement donations nor tainted, hoped for personal gain Bingo dollars. It's always the innocent bystanders who suffer most when moralists and opportunists engage in learned forensics.

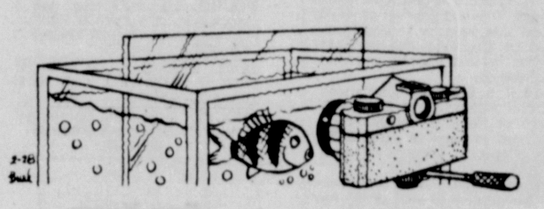
How to take fish photos

DEAR DR. MILLER: I'm trying to take pictures of my tropical fish but they turn out fuzzy. Out-of-focus I guess, and with reflections. How do I cure these problems? — G.A.

DEAR G.A.: Reduce reflection by keeping the camera lens against the front glass of the tank. That lens should be capable of focusing below 3 feet. It also helps to slip a clean pane of glass vertically into the tank behind the fish to shorten the tank depth for more clarity. Your fish won't be overly fond of the whole procedure, but the most traumatic part of all could be popping flash bulbs. Avoid this by using an overhead photo flood bulb. You'll want to take plenty of pictures, of course, but to avoid parboiling or fracturing the fish's psyche, keep the total time short.



DEAR DR, MILLER: I just read a scary article about bad hip joints in big dogs. That condition called hip displasia. My 8-month-old German shepherd, Hilda, has a very sexy wiggle to her hips when she walks. That couldn't be hip displasia, could it? — M.F.

DEAR M.F.: Whether Hilda's hips are having a problem or just a good time would have to be determined by her own veterinarian. Hip displasia is a significant problem in larger dogs, and so her doctor definitely should have a look at her, probably with the aid of X-rays.

DEAR DR. MILLER: The children dump too much litter in the cat box. You'd think it was free sand from a beach or something the way they use it. One reason must be so they won't have to change it so often. How long can it last? —S.A.

DEAR S.A.: Cleaning the cat box is a poor chore for children. Younger children, the most susceptible, might even be tempted to play with this "sand," and the cat box could be a primary source for taxoplasmosis and roundworm infestation. Older, non-pregnant members of the family should cope with the cat box, using smaller amounts of litter and changing it at least every 48 hours if there are young children in the household. In an adults-only house, there's no significant health hazard, so piling in more litter and packing it out less often may be a practical approach to the problem. Frequency then would be determined by volume and quality of litter, ventilation, number of cats and their diet.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today, Lady Luck is on your side. Don't rely on her full time, though, since she's very fickle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Unintentionally, you may do something to displease another today. Your wit and humor will quickly put you back in their good graces.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) To make money today you'll have to cast a little bread upon the waters, but it will generate the response you desire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Friends will help you in your career today if you don't make a direct or blatant appeal. Use imagination and subtlety.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your compassion is quickly aroused today. You may go overboard to aid the needy. Why's counting when the cause is worthy?

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's to your credit to make an adjustment today if someone overpays you. They'll appreciate your honesty and you'll feel better for it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your first thought today is to look for the easy way. Once you smell a profit, however, you'll go after it full-tilt.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An associate will envision opportunity where you see only limited possibilities. Fortunately, you'll be able to adjust and reap the benefits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You can be a great help in advising another, provided you don't arouse false hopes. There's no need to do so. The potential is there.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be a good observer today. You'll see someone extricate herself from a difficult situation gracefully. You'll need the lesson later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You can get others to do what you want them to do today without flattery. Be direct and they'll follow your lead.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It is not what you have that impresses others but what you are. Affectations are totally unnecessary today to win admirers.

Teachers tell it like it is

Dear Readers: Recently I printed a letter from an Iowa teacher who was resigning because she was "sick of being called foul names, sick of hearing students use four-letter words, fed up on garbage and fights in the halls, and the 'you can't make me do it' attitude."

I responded, "Your letter sounds as if it was written in 1968. I am of the opinion that students of all ages are looking better, thinking better and behaving better. If I've been misled, I hope you teachers out there will let me know."

I'm sorry (and more than a little chagrined) to report that they HAVE been letting me know — in strong language and large numbers. I've been told I'm clearly "off my rocker," "completely out of touch," "Crazy as a loon" and "living in Disneyland." This is what my week has been like:

From Richmond, Va.: That Iowa teacher took the words right out of my mouth. I'm no quitter, but I, too, am considering resigning. These kids are more than I can take.

Armada, Mich.: I drive a school bus and "Iowa Teacher" is right. Today's students are undisciplined, unmotivated and I've had it with their filthy language. They've gotten worse in the last five years.

Buffalo, N.Y.: I'm a 14-year-old student who is ashamed of the kids I go to school with. They get away with acting terrible because the teachers have no one who will back them up. When they get into a hassle with parents the teachers always lose.

Royal Oak, Mich.: The public would not believe what goes on in the average classroom. Anyone who goes into teaching today should have his head examined.

Memphis, Tenn.: I've taught school for 25 years. These last five years have been the worst. Everything that isn't nailed down disappears. The language in the halls and classrooms is unprintable. (P.S. Our students are from 5 to 11 years of age.)

Chicago: I am a teacher who is also ready to quit. I have a nervous stomach from the fist-fighting in my classes. Last week a student pulled a knife on me. Three teachers in our school were assaulted last month. It's a nightmare!

San Rafael, Cal.: The kids are a handful, but it's not their fault. Parents have failed to teach them respect for authority. Other problems: (1) The teachers are too lazy (or scared) to demand respect. (2) Principals are afraid to fire incompetent teachers. (3) The taxpayers vote NO against improvements that are badly needed because they cost money. The public school system in our country needs rehauling from top to bottom.

Bryan, Tex.: Most teachers are so worn out trying to maintain discipline they have no time to teach. Kids who want to learn are being ripped off.

So, Dear Readers, there you have it. Perhaps I was so far off target because I've been lecturing on college campuses these last few years and haven't spent much time in high schools. Since 1971, I have addressed audiences at Harvard, Yale, Duke, the University of North Carolina, MIT, Notre Dame, and the University of Cincinnati, to name a few. The students at those schools were BEAUTIFUL. They were courteous, responsive and a pleasure to be around.

Joe Firman

Jimmy, clothes the door!

As one who feels overdressed in his son's hand-me-up blue jeans and YMCA T-shirt, I was in no position (supine with with the telly on my tummy) to criticize President Carter's costume when he gave that recent "fireside chat" in a cardigan and necktie. (Well, shirt and pants, too, of course.) To several million Americans, all with voting rights, a sweater is perfectly proper under all circumstances, and a necktie constitutes formal dress. (The cardigan is a knitted woolen jacket named for the seventh Earl of Cardigan, 1797-1868. Remember, you heard it here FIRST!)

In spite of this, newspapers and magazines have been bombarded with indignant letters from indignant subscribers charging Carter with disregard for normal protocol and disrespect for the Highest Office in the Land for appearing en negligee on national TV. If proper habiliments constitute dignity and respect for office, Richard Nixon, in spite of his Sal Maglie shave, was certainly up there in dignity and respect. Personally I always felt that Nixon looked like George Raft. However, the Emperor's clothes do not make the man.

Many people have in their minds a sort of beau ideal of of popular stereotypes in our society, such as it is, and they are disappointed and offended when the stereotypes step out of character or fail to maintain the traditional trappings. The Movie Star should be all furs, jewels and glamorous cars, and not be observed in bathrobe and hair curlers, rinsing out her pantyhose in a motel bathroom sink. The Athlete should be rugged and bronzed, non-drinking, non-smoking, "a model for the kids," not brawling in bars and racing around in expensive cars with expensive women. Artists all lead wild lives with red wine and nude models; College Professors are chalk-dusty and absent-minded; Congressional Leaders are models of morality and concern for amateur typists. When the character violates his cliche, people are irritated.

President Carter fits the traditional pattern less than any president since Andrew Jackson stumped around the White House in his stocking feet. Ford, Nixon, Johnson, Kennedy and other occupants dressed with formal dignity if not always with style. Many conservatives bewail the passing of the tall silk hat and high collars sported by Hoover, and the Bohemian capes and soft hats of FDR. The new administration will be wearing leisure suits, fish-net blouses, and sport shirts open to the navel (with medallion, of course). Can't you see Mondale in sandles and tank top? Sartor Resartus, indeed.

Rosalynn Carter outraged many by kicking off her shoes in a formal reception line and giving informal aid and comfort to her weary tootsies, but she endeared herself to a million sore-footed housewives, shop clerks, waitresses and mail females. The comfortable, homey gesture will go down in history with the hole in the sole of Adlai Stevenson's shoe.

So there is our First Family, casual, comfortable and unselfconscious, and I have a feeling that most of the nation approves. For four years (at least) we are going to see jeans and sweaters and stocking feet at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, and if that's the worst thing that happens to the nation, we can all be grateful.

As a wise woman of my acquaintance is fond of saying, "That's what we're having."

Tipped uterus worries her

DEAR DR. LAMB — I got married recently and my husband and I agreed to wait before starting a family. I went to my doctor for birth control pills. He gave me a Pap test, but while doing it he casually said I have a tipped womb. I bombarded him with questions as to my chances of getting pregnant and if I do conceive will I be able to carry my child for nine months. He said it was nothing and not to worry about it. He gave me a prescription for the pills. I told him I would not take them because he was so vague in responding to my questions.

I told my husband about my doctor's visit and my fears about not being able to get pregnant, the doctor would not have given them to me. I love my husband and would like to think that he and the doctor are correct, but I'm worried and not satisfied with either. I consulted a gynecologist and she was even vaguer than my regular doctor.

What I want to know from you is, with a tipped womb, considering my health to be excellent, will I get pregnant? I am not taking the pills and I haven't gotten pregnant. I haven't told my husband because I do want to have his children and I have it planted in my mind that it will take many years to conceive and if I take the pills it will take even longer. Am I wrong? Or will I have to have my womb straight before I can conceive?

DEAR READER — By the time you get my reply you may have already found out that you can get pregnant. Won't your husband be surprised!

I suspect your doctors have been reluctant to promise you that you will get pregnant because 15 per cent of couples do not have children — that is, having nothing to do with a "tipped womb."

A tipped womb simply refers to the fact that the uterus is not positioned so that its dome (blind end) is pointed above or toward the pubic bone. In the adult female the uterus is like a pear with the blossom end pointed toward the wall of the abdomen and the stem end or cervix directed downward, opening at the top or near the blind end of the vaginal canal. When the uterus is tipped it is usually "retrodisplaced" meaning the uterus has fallen backward.

The point you need to know is that studies have been done to see if displacement of the uterus would affect fertility. While some "tipped wombs" were observed in infertile couples this was not the cause of the infertility. After all, since 15 per cent of couples are infertile it would be surprising if all of these women had perfect reproductive systems.

Even if displacement of the uterus changes the location of the cervix to some extent this will not prevent pregnancy. All that has to happen is for sperm to get to the opening, wherever it is, and they will migrate to the uterus. A normal pregnancy is then just as likely to occur as in a woman without a tipped uterus.

Those who want information on the menstrual-cycle and menopause can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 5-12. Write to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Oswald: "South's four-club opening bid is not recommended as a steady diet. We would far prefer a pass or a mere three-club bid. After a three-club opening, North would have bid three notrump and made at least four. After the four-club bid, North tried Blackwood and wisely refrained from bidding a slam after South showed zero aces."

Jim: "A diamond lead would have led to a one-trick set. East would take two diamonds as a starter and the defense would still be sure to get a heart trick. As it was, the spade lead gave South a chance to make an unusual but very successful play at trick one."

Oswald: "Your tip should tell our readers what South did. He simply played a low spade from dummy. East had to win the trick and now the hand could not be defeated."

Jim: "Actually, South came home with six odd when East returned a spade. He discarded a heart on that spade return, drew trumps while leaving a high trump in dummy, played king, ace and another heart which he ruffed; returned to dummy with a high trump and discarded both diamonds on the last two hearts."

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know the procedure to get the American Contract Bridge League to approve a new bidding system for tournament use.

If the system is new and complicated, the best answer is to forget about the whole thing. If it is generally similar to standard methods, he should write the ACBL and ask approval for the whole thing or for some specific bids.

Bank profits from robbery

In Middleton, Tenn., a bumbling bank robber, pursued in a running gunfight, strewed $18,000 in bills and coins all up and down the street. In 1952, that was. The townspeople mobilized to gather up the scattered money and return it to the bank. An audit then showed the bank collected 80 cents more than had been stolen. Police statisticians think it's the only case in history where a bank showed a profit from a robbery.

Suicide notes have been found in the effects of thousands of persons who've died natural deaths. They'd changed their minds, evidently. But hadn't destroyed the notes. Believe I already mentioned that suicide notes are rarely dated.

PLANTAR WARTS

Q. "Do plantar warts show up anywhere but on the soles of the feet?"

A. No, the word plantar itself alludes to the foot sole surface, not to the type of wart growth. If you have plantar callouses, plantar blisters or plantar wrinkles, that means they're on the soles of your feet.

Q. "What's the difference between sleet and freezing rain?"

A. If the raindrop freezes before it hits the ground, it's sleet. If it freezes on impact, it's freezing rain.

Q. "That notorious gangster of the Prohibition Era, Al Capone, what did his business card identify him as?"

A. A second-hand furniture dealer.

LOVE AND WAR

Consider the wife who vacations with her husband in Hawaii. Observes that renowned Love and War expert Dr. Joseph Peck: If typical, she'll probably remind you to watch the hula dancer's hands because they tell such a beautiful story in sign language, not realizing that you didn't make the trip to look at hands, and like most men, you would prefer that the dancer keep her hands over her head all of the time so that the view will not be obstructed.

When the great Albert Einstein fled Nazi Germany, he turned up in London with only the clothes on his back and his violin. A friend said, "You still play the violin, Albert?" The math genius said, "Yes, but not too well. My teacher says I can't count." Or so goes the tale.

Are you aware of the fact that the people in the United States person for person read fewer books than do the citizens of any other major English-speaking democracy?

CITY OF VARIETY — Downtown Boston changes its skyline with new construction and remodels its old warehouses, left, into apartments and offices while keeping its culture and history. Faneuil Hall, center, is where colonialists met to protest British rule in 1775. Skyscrapers, background, dwarf the historic building.

Boston: whatever else, interesting

BOSTON (AP) — A popular souvenir beer mug sold in 1822 when Boston became an incorporated city reads: "Success to the Crooked but Interesting town of Boston."

Boston has had its prosperous times, its crooked times, and lately it's hard times.

But as the mug says, Boston has always been an interesting town.

Boston is one of the hardest-pressed big cities at a time when most of the country's older, Northeastern cities are suffering from serious and complex financial problems.

But unlike Detroit or Newark — cities where residents fear to walk the streets and suburbanites say they rarely, if ever, go downtown — Boston is still a dynamic center of culture and history.

The city and its diverse neighborhoods are fighting the tide of decay — some with government help and some on their own.

In the tiny section of Bay Village, for example, urban renewal programs begun more than a decade ago combined with a strong sense of neighborhood identity to turn the area into a gas-lit showcase, even though it is located adjacent to Boston's pornography center, the Combat Zone.

But in some parts of the city, such as the poorest sections of Roxbury or in Charlestown where the school busing controversy has aroused bitter racial feelings, no amount of money seems able to solve the problems.

Washington Street twists narrowly through downtown Boston. A walk down that street shows the city for what it is: full of culture, history, problems and contradictions.

At its southern end is the Combat Zone, so-called because a city plan to concentrate "adult entertainment" turned it into one of Boston's worst crime pockets.

Only a block or so away lies a thriving commercial district.

A short walk leads to the "Old Corner Bookstore," now a museum reflecting New England's literary heritage. The patrons that once wrote and browsed in this little corner shop included Nathaniel Hawthorne, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Henry David Thoreau, Ralph Waldo Emerson, and later, James Russell Lowell, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Julia Ward Howe.

Washington Street ends at the doorstep of The Old State House, a 264-year-old brick structure overshadowed, but not quite overpowered by recently built city government buildings. It is possibly the oldest public building in the nation, and until 1776 it was the seat of British government in Massachusetts.

The first shots of the Revolution occurred in front of this building, in a skirmish called "The Boston Massacre."

The building is now a museum marking Boston's place in American history. It draws about 5,000 to 15,000 visitors a month, well below the number who patronize the peep shows just down the street.

Ask Bostonians what is causing the city's problems, from blighted housing to street crime, and the most frequent answer is the busing ordered by a federal court two years ago to integrate schools.

Andy Olins, the city's chief housing adviser, contends that money that could have gone for housing and other improvements has had to go toward court-ordered improvements to schools affected by busing.

The effects of busing are less subtle in the small laboring section of Charlestown, where residents have drawn their livelihood for centuries from Boston's wharfs.

A few years back, says longtime resident Kevin Roche, there were "maybe 30 black families" in Charlestown. But when busing came, the blacks were "hassled out" and now it is virtually all white.

Graffiti featuring antibusing slogans and racial epithets scar the walls of the run-down public housing, not far from the Bunker Hill monument where colonists battled for liberty nearly 202 years ago.

A school bus trundles by and Roche remarks, "At least now the buses don't have police escorts."

This island nation couldn't be happier over plight of world's coffee drinkers

MATUGAMA, Sri Lanka (AP) — Sri Lankans couldn't be happier about the plight of the world's coffee drinkers. Now they hope Americans and others who have been hit by higher coffee prices will indulge more in this country's liquid gold: tea.

Since almost half this island nation's export earnings come from the green camellia tree, the world's tea-drinking habits are carefully scrutinized here.

Sri Lanka, formerly known as Ceylon, supplies almost a third of the world's tea, or in more graphic terms, about 75 billion cups, every year.

With such quantities at stake, even a small drop in world demand could mean deep trouble for Sri Lanka's already shaky, undiversified economy.

Conversely, as one government official claims: "If British housewives were willing to pay 10 pence (7 cents) more for a pound of tea, it would solve half of Sri Lanka's balance of payments deficit."

The British housewife now pays the equivalent of about $1.50 a pound for tea in retail stores. The world wholesale price for tea in London, a leading international tea market, is $1.01 a pound for quality teas, up from 56 cents a year ago. Plain teas which were 37 cents a pound last year are 77 cents now in London.

The country has been lucky since world demand for tea has increased about 2.5 per cent the past two years, with the Middle East, Pakistan, South Africa, the United States and parts of Western Europe emerging as top growth areas for consumption.

The "extraordinarily high" coffee prices, predicts a recent United Nations agricultural report, is one key factor expected to stimulate the tea industry until at least the end of the decade when coffee, now more than $3 a pound in the United States, may once again become a reasonably priced beverage.

"The hard-core coffee drinker who depends on it to start the day probably will continue to drink it no matter how high the prices are," says the head of the Sri Lanka Tea Board, Mahinda Dunuwille. "We expect to get switches to tea among the after-breakfast coffee drinkers."

Although most of the country's tea is marketed through foreign companies, the Sri Lanka government has mounted its own campaign, sending out sari-clad "tea girls" to Japan, Britain, the United States, and Australia on "Buy Ceylon Tea" tours.

All this should have helped Sri Lanka's economy, but in fact hasn't very much. The Tea Board chief and others in the industry, echoing arguments familiar in the Third World, say tea is still "the world's cheapest drink next to water" and that prices in the developed world could go up another 50 per cent without a drop in demand.

About 10 major multinationals, four of them British, control most of the world market, making large upward price jumps virtually impossible, Dunuwille said. Some tea-growing nations — especially in Africa where the industry is in its developing stage — are reluctant to abide by production quotas designed to force worldwide prices upward. Dunuwille said the high cost of fertilizers and other needed imports has also cut into Sri Lankan tea profits.

The U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization — FAO — noted in a recent report that the total value of Sri Lanka's tea exports, when deflated by an International Monetary Fund index of import prices for the country, actually dropped by 61 per cent between 1973 and 1975.

A four-year drought and management turnovers on some tea plantations following massive government nationalizations in 1975 have also contributed to Sri Lanka's tea industry failure to make the most of its world price advantage. Production actually dropped by about 7 per cent last year.

In short, explains one senior central bank economist, some essential changes are needed in the coutry's strongly Socialist economy to reap the full benefits from tea and other export commodities, such as rubber and coconuts.

While a strong case can be made for "Western economic exploitation," the inequalities don't seem to stop in Colombo, Sri Lanka's capital.

Some government and trade union officials say that whatever benefits the country derives from its tea haven't been passed on to the workers in the tea fields and factories of Sri Lanka.

On the sprawling tea plantations near this town 30 miles southeast of Colombo, the laborers live in squalid "line-houses," often with families of up to 10 persons packed into a room 10 feet by 12. There is no electricity and the water supply is meager. Heirs of British plantation paternalism, the workers are confined to estate schools and clinics regarded as inferior to government facilities.

Some of them here complain that conditions have in fact deteriorated since the government took over most plantations, although holdings now run by two large government concerns have registered some improvements.

The workers, hundreds of thousands of them, are mostly Tamils, immigrants from southern India.

S. Thondaman, president of the powerful Ceylon Worker's Congress which represents about 300,000 plantation laborers, said that rather than benefiting from Sri Lanka's independence from Britain in 1948, the Tamils were actually disenfranchised four years later and have lacked the political clout to better their lot.

Although the government now appears to be making an effort to alleviate their plight, many Tamils still don't have the vote.

Women do most of the nimble plucking of the low trees, often planted on steep hillsides. They work about seven hours a day under the sun, carrying baskets weighing up to 60 pounds on their backs. On an average day they pick enough leaves to make about 2,000 cups of tea. For this they are paid 4.88 rupees — 61 cents.

"The higher price of tea has not touched the lives of the workers," says a spokesman for the plantation union. "There is much sweat, blood and tears."

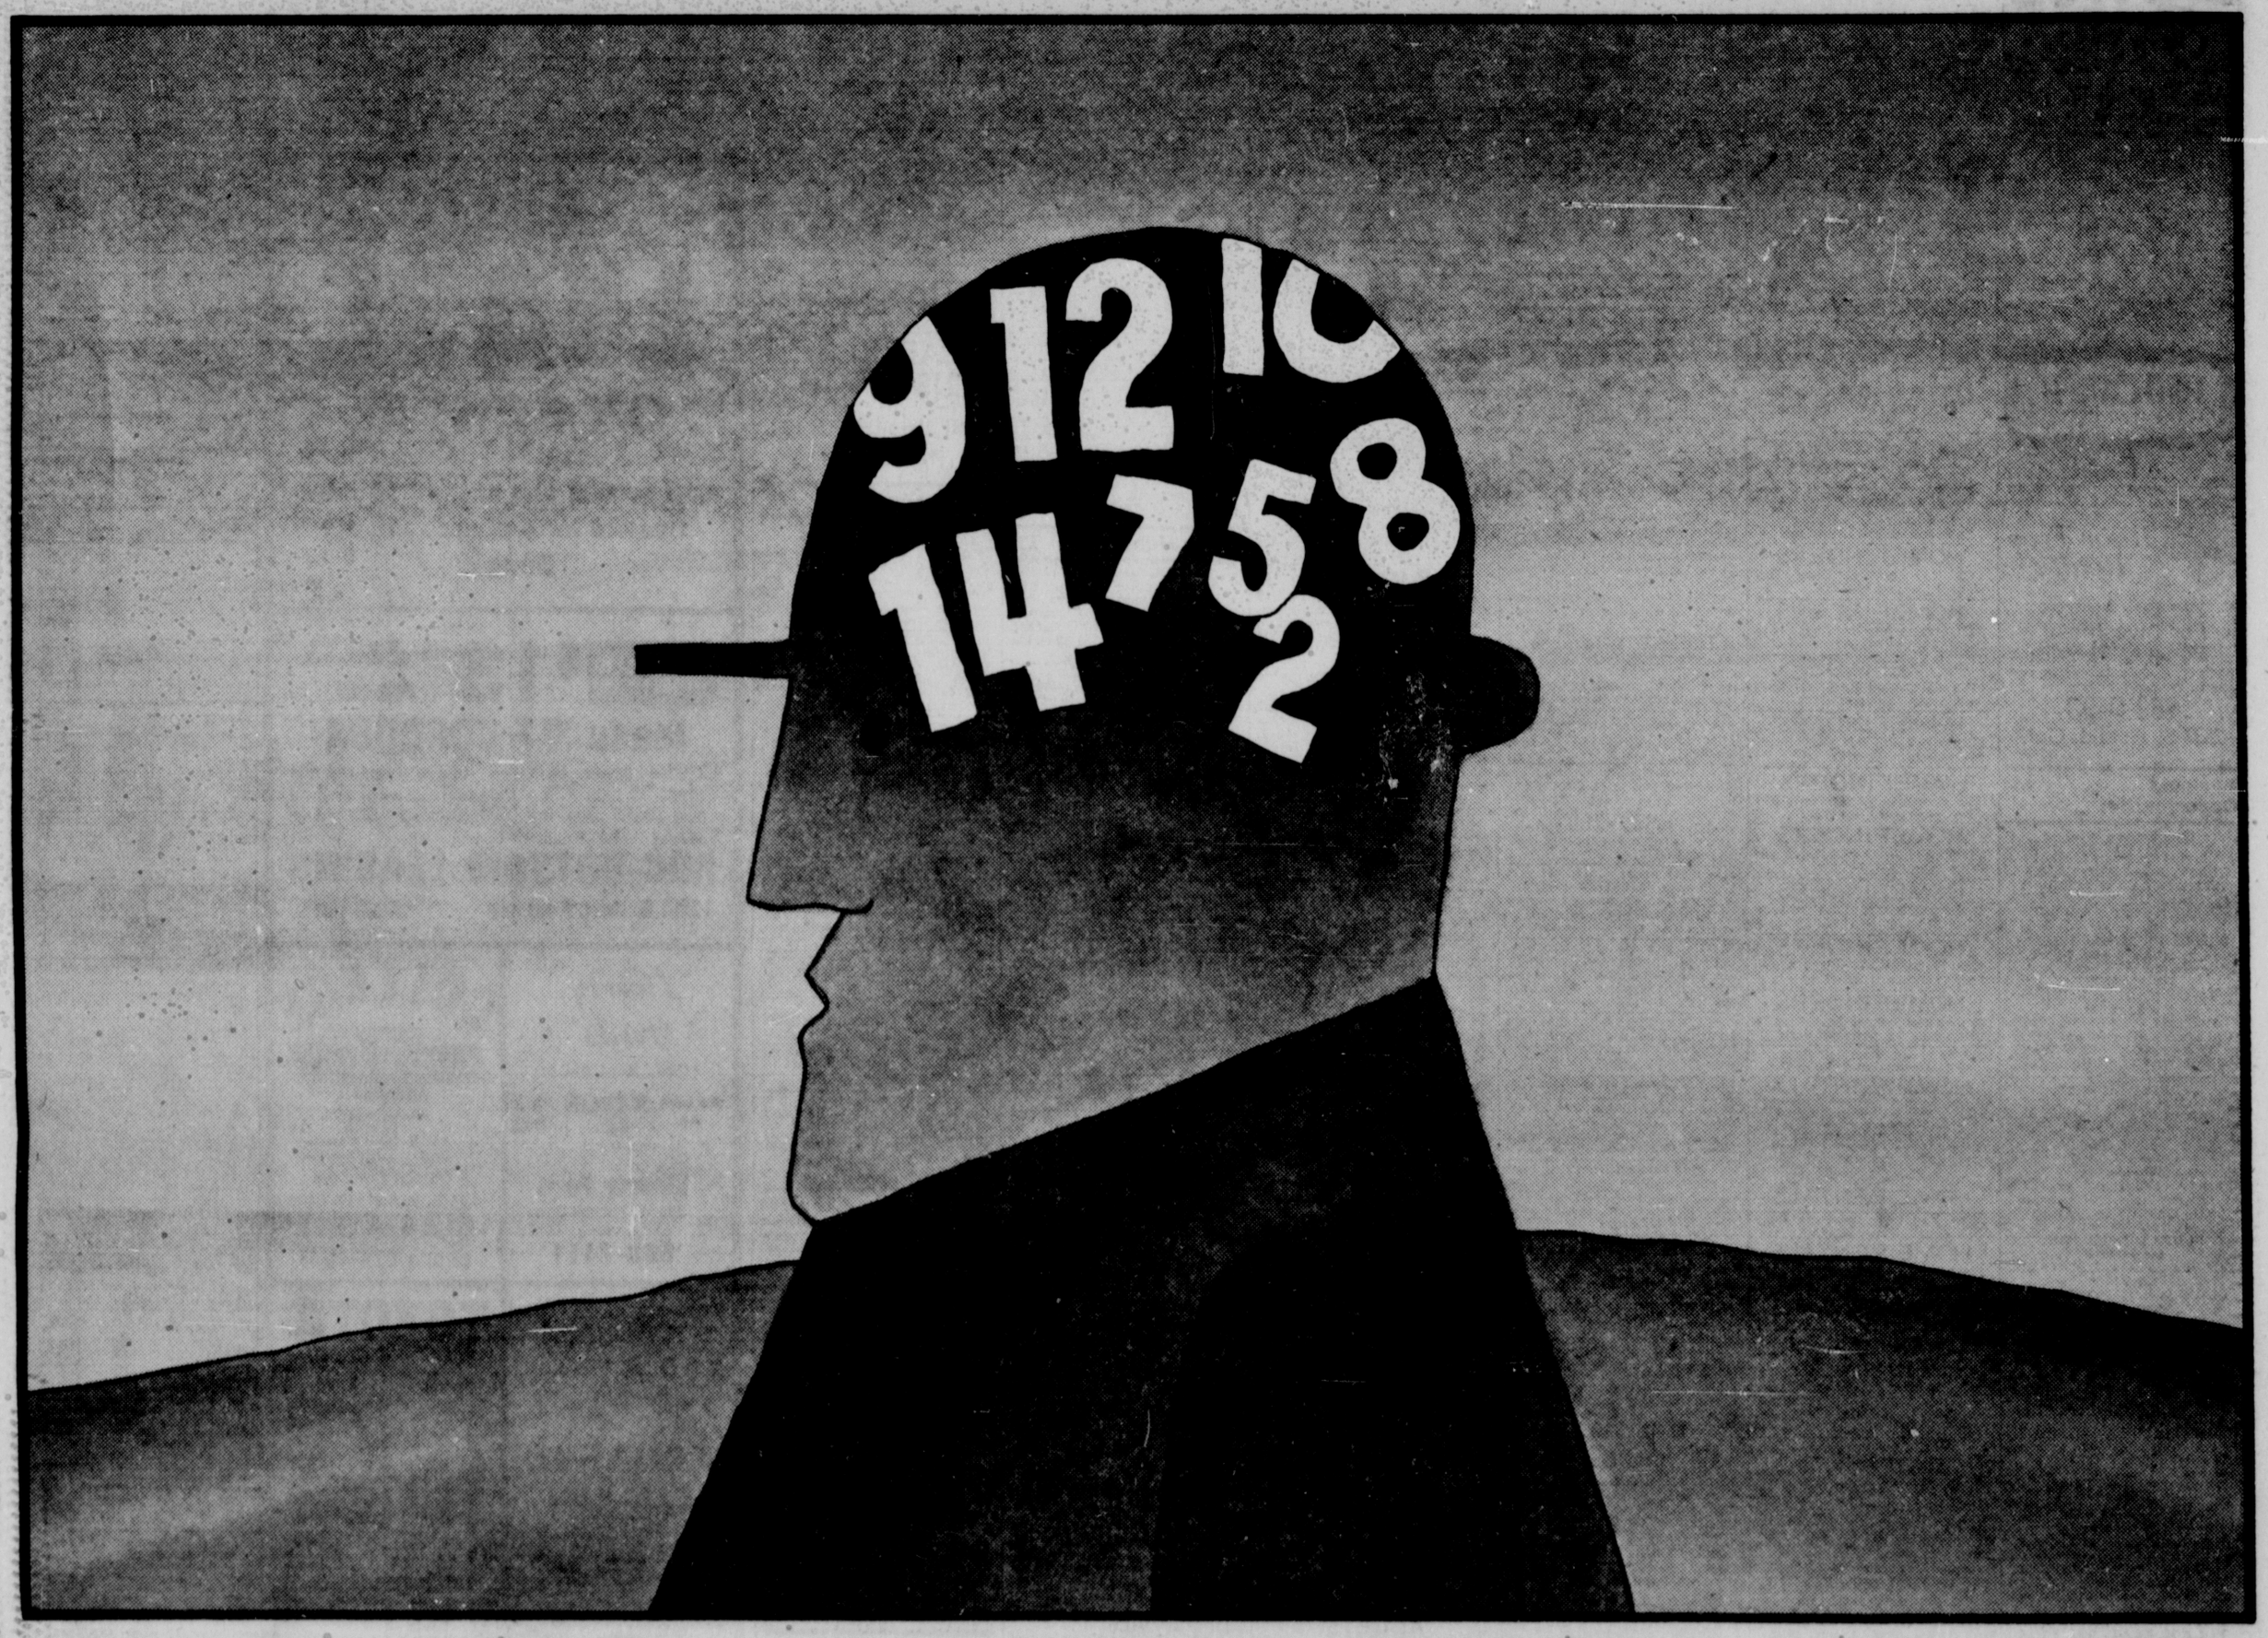
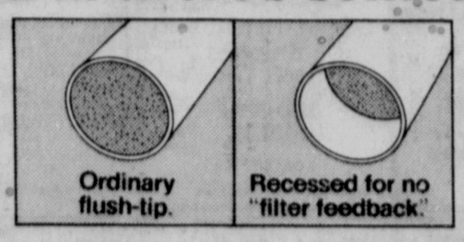
There's more to choosing a low-tar cigarette than just picking a number.



Any low-tar cigarette will give you a low-tar number. But there's something else that you should consider. We call it "filter feedback."



As you smoke, tar builds up on the tip of your cigarette filter. That's "filter feedback." Ordinary flush-tipped filters put that tar build-up flat against your lips.

And that's where low-tar Parliament has the advantage. Parliament's filter is recessed to keep tar buildup from touching your lips. So there's no "filter feedback." All you get is that smooth Parliament taste.

10 mg. Kings
12 mg. 100's

Low-tar Parliament.
More than just a number.

© Philip Morris Inc. 1977

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Kings: 10 mg. "tar," 0.8 mg. nicotine—
100's: 12 mg. "tar," 0.9 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method.
